PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION.

A SECOND Edition having been called for the Compiler has carefully gone through the work, and enlarged the notes in various places, and has added one additional principal case, viz., that of Earl of Beauchamp v. Winn, on the subject of Mistake. In the same way as has been done in the Second Edition of the 'Epitome of Leading Common Law Cases,' the reference to the original report has been added to each case, and also for the use of students blank spaces are left for the purpose of making MS. notes and additions.

PREFACE TO FIRST EDITION.

IN the same way that his 'Epitome of Leading Common Law Cases' is intended by the author as a guide to 'Smith's Leading Cases,' so this Epitome is meant to constitute a stepping-stone to the study of the well-known 'Leading Cases in Equity' by Messrs. White and Tudor, and the 'Conveyancing Cases' by Mr. Tudor, and it contains all the cases set out in those volumes—except some few which have been thought not now of so much practical importance—together with several additional ones. If it will induce the student to explore the mines of learning to be found in those valuable works the author's object will be fully attained.

The Conveyancing and Equity Cases are here epitomized together, because they generally bear such a close relationship, many of those indeed which are given in the Equity volumes, more especially, bearing quite as much on Conveyancing; thus, in the Final Examination at Michaelmas Term last, under the head of 'Conveyancing,' two questions were asked directly on Messrs. White and Tudor's Equity Cases, and it is also very convenient to consider them together.

NOTE.—The edition of 'TUDOR'S LEADING CASES ON CONVEYANCING' to which reference is made in this Epitome is the 2nd, published in 1863, and the edition of 'WHITE AND TUDOR'S LEADING CASES IN EQUITY' to which reference is made is the 4th, published in 1872.

AN EPITOME OF LEADING CONVEYANCING AND EQUITY CASES.

RICHARDSON v. LANGRIDGE.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 4.)
(4 Taunt. 128.)

Decided :—That if an agreement be made to let premises so long as both parties live, and reserving a compensation accruing de die in diem, and not referable to a year or any aliquot part of a year, it does not create a holding from year to year, but a tenancy at will strictly so called; but if there is a general letting at a yearly rent, though payable half-yearly or quarterly, and though nothing is said about the duration of the term, it is an implied letting from year to year.

Notes.—This case shews the rule for determining when a tenancy is for years and when at will. The leaning of the Courts is always to construe the tenancy as from year to year. Although a tenancy may originally be at will, yet it may afterwards, by payment of rent or other circumstances, be converted into a tenancy for years (see Epitome of Lead. C. L. Cases, 2nd ed. 48, 49).

B

The proper notice to determine a yearly tenancy is six months, expiring at the end of the current year of the tenancy. A monthly tenancy merely requires a month's notice, and a weekly tenancy a week's notice; and in the case of lodgings a reasonable notice only is required.

LEWIS BOWLES' CASE.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 27.)

(11 Co. 79 b.)

The following were the chief points resolved :—

1. That a tenant in tail after possibility of issue extinct shall not be punished for waste.

2. That if a tenant for life fells timber or pulls down the house, the lessor shall have the timber ; but if the house falls down, the particular tenant has a special property in the timber to rebuild the house.

3. That a tenant for life without impeachment of waste has as great power to do waste and convert it at his own pleasure as has a tenant in tail.

4. That the property in severed trees vests in a tenant for life without impeachment of waste.

GARTH v. COTTON.

(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 697.)

(1 Ves. 524, 546.)

Mr. Garth, the father of the plaintiff, was tenant of lands for ninety-nine years, if he should so long live, without impeachment of waste, except voluntary waste ; remainder to trustees to preserve contingent remainders ; remainder to his first and other sons in tail ; remainder to defendant in fee. Mr. Garth (before the birth of a son) and the defendant, according to an agreement, cut down timber and divided the profits between them. The plaintiff was afterwards born, and having suffered a recovery, brought this bill against defendant to refund his share of the profits of the timber received by him.

Decided:—That he was so entitled to recover from the defendant.

Notes on these two Cases.—The first of the above two cases is the leading case as to waste and the powers of persons having estates not of inheritance, and contains several important resolutions, and is always referred to on the subject. The latter case is as to that kind of waste called “equitable waste.” “Waste” is defined in Mr. Tudor’s notes to Lewis Bowles’ Case as “the destructive or material alteration of things forming an essential part of the inheritance;” and it is either voluntary, which is by the tenant’s own act, or permissive, as by letting the premises go to ruin. The remedy for waste is either by action at law or suit in equity for damages for waste already committed, or an injunction may be obtained against future waste; but it has been decided that in cases of permissive waste Courts of Equity cannot interfere, but the party injured must be left to his remedy at law. Waste is also divided with reference to the remedy into Legal and Equitable waste.

The liability of different owners for waste stands as follows:—

1. A tenant in fee simple being as nearly as can be absolute owner of his estate, can commit any act of waste he pleases, except indeed when there is an executory devise over, when he cannot commit equitable waste.

2. A tenant in tail may also commit any act of waste, but if he becomes tenant in tail after possibility of issue extinct, he cannot commit equitable waste.

3. A tenant for life is liable for all acts of waste, and even when he holds his estate without impeachment of waste he cannot commit equitable waste.

4. A tenant from year to year is also, of course, liable for waste, but as to permissive waste, all he is bound to do is fair and tenantable repairs, to keep the house wind and water tight, not any substantial or lasting repairs.

By the Judicature Act, 1873 (36 & 37 Vict. c. 66), s. 25 (3), it is provided that "an estate for life without impeachment of waste shall not confer or be deemed to have conferred upon the tenant for life any legal right to commit waste of the description known as equitable waste unless an intention to confer such right shall expressly appear by the instrument creating such estate."

TYRRINGHAM'S CASE.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 101.)

(4 Co. 36 a.)

The following were the chief points resolved :—

1. That prescription does not make a thing appendant to another unless it agree in nature and quality with it, as a thing corporeal cannot be appendant to another corporeal thing, nor vice versâ.

2. That common appendant is of common right, and need not be prescribed for; but that it only belongs to ancient arable land, and for horses and oxen to plough, and cows and sheep to manure the land.

3. Common appendant is apportionable, but not common appurtenant.

4. Unity of possession of the whole land is an extinguishment of common appendant.

5. Common appendant remains, though a house be afterwards built on the land, or the arable land be afterwards converted into pasture; but in pleading it ought to be prescribed for as appendant to land.

Notes.—The above case is the leading authority as to common and rights of common. In Mr. Tudor's notes to this case a right of common is defined as "a right which one person has of taking some part of the produce of land, while the whole property of the land itself is vested in another." There are properly four kinds of common, viz.: (1) Common of pasture; (2) Common of piscary; (3) Common of turbary; and (4) Common of estovers; and to these is sometimes added a fifth sort, viz., Common in the soil. Common of pasture, which is the most usual and important sort, may be either (1) Appendant, (2) Appurtenant, (3) Because of vicinage, or (4) In gross.

The time for which a right of common must be enjoyed to constitute a good title to it is that it must be held for thirty years, after which it is only defeasible by reason of disability, and after sixty years it is indefeasible unless the holding be by consent given by deed or writing (2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71).

SURY v. PIGOT.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 127.)

(Poph. 166.)

The following were the chief points determined :—

1. That a watercourse having its origin ex jure naturæ, and not from grant or prescription, is not extinguished by unity of possession ; but

2. A right of way, having its origin either by grant or prescription, will be extinguished by unity of possession, unless it be a way of necessity, as a way to market or church.

Notes.—This case is the leading authority upon the law of easements. An easement is defined by Mr. Tudor in his notes to the case as “a right which the owner of one tenement, which is called the dominant tenement, has over another which is called the servient tenement, to compel the owner thereof to permit to be done, or to refrain from doing, something on such tenement for the advantage of the former.” Easements may arise by express or implied grant, or by prescription, or by Act of Parliament.

The time for which enjoyment of an easement must be had to constitute a good title is fixed by the same statute as applies to rights of common, viz., 2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 71. By that statute twenty years’ uninterrupted enjoyment is to confer a title, except in the case of disability, and the right is to be absolute after forty years unless the holding is by consent given by deed or writing.

FOX v. BISHOP OF CHESTER.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 190.)

(6 Bing. 1.)

Here, whilst the incumbent of the living was in extremis, but before he died, the next presentation was sold, but without the privity of, and without any intention to present, the particular clerk to the church when vacant. Decided:—That this sale was not void on the ground of simony.

Notes.—But had the sale been when the living was actually vacant, it would have been simoniacal and bad.

It may be useful to here notice the subject of Resignation Bonds. These are bonds by which a minister is appointed to a living on his agreeing to resign it in a certain person's favour, and they are frequently had recourse to when the patron has some relative he may wish to present the living to, but who is not yet ordained, or some other circumstances render it impossible for him to take to the living at once. A general resignation bond is bad, but by 9 Geo. 4, c. 94, such a bond is to be good if in favour of any one person named, or one of two persons, each being by blood or marriage an uncle, son, grandson, brother, nephew, or grandnephew of the patron or one of the patrons. One part of the instrument by which the engagement is made must be deposited within two calendar months in the office of the registrar of the diocese, and the resignation must refer to the engagement, and state for whose benefit it is made.

TYRRELL'S CASE.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 274.)(Dyer, 155 a.)

Decided:—That there cannot be a use upon a use.

Notes.—The Statute of Uses (27 Hen. 8, c. 10) provided, that where any persons should stand seised of any hereditaments to the use, confidence, or trust of any other persons, &c., the persons, &c., who had any such use, confidence, or trust should be deemed in lawful seisin and possession of the same hereditaments for such estates as they had in the use, trust, or confidence. The above case decided that the statute executing the first use declared subsequent uses were void; and it was in consequence of this that the Court of Chancery stepped in, and thus arose the modern doctrine of uses and trusts.

ALEXANDER v. ALEXANDER.(Lead. Cas. Conv. 330.)(2 Ves. 640.)

Here, under a power to appoint amongst children, the appointor had appointed part to children and part to grandchildren. Decided:—That the appointment to grandchildren was bad; but that a power may be good and bad in part, and the excess only void, where the execution is complete and the bounds between it and the excess clear.

TOLLET v. TOLLET.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 227.)(2 P. Wms. 489.)

Here a husband had a power to make a jointure to his wife by deed, and he did it by will, and she had no other provision. Decided:—That Equity will make this defective execution good; but that it would not assist in the case of non-execution of a power.

ALEYN v. BELCHIER.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 377.)(1 Eden, 132.)

Here a power of jointuring was executed in favour of a wife, but with an agreement that the wife should only receive a part as an annuity for her own benefit, and that the residue should be applied to the payment of the husband's debts. Decided:—That this was a fraud upon the power, and the execution was set aside, except so far as related to the annuity, the bill containing a submission to pay it, and only seeking relief against the other objects of the appointment.

TOPHAM v. DUKE OF PORTLAND.

(1 De G. J. & S. 517.)

Here the donee of a power, appointing portions in pursuance thereof, appointed a double share to one of the objects of the power without any previous communication with him, but the instructions with reference to such double share were that half should be held upon a certain trust; and soon after the appointment the appointee executed a deed settling the moiety accordingly. Decided:—That the purpose of the appointment as to the moiety, though uncommunicated, vitiated it as to that portion, but as to that portion only. The rights of persons entitled in default of appointment under a power, can be defeated only by its bonâ fide exercise.

Notes on these four Cases.—These cases are here placed together for convenience as all bearing on the same general subject, the first as to the result of an excessive execution of a power, the second as shewing that Equity will assist in the case of defective execution of a power, and the remaining two as being both leading authorities as to what acts will be considered frauds upon powers.

With regard to the defective execution of a power relief will be given in Equity in favour of any of the following:—(1) A charity; (2) A purchaser; (3) A creditor; (4) An intended husband; (5) A wife; (6) A legitimate child; where in each case the defect is not of the very essence of the power. Notwithstanding the decision in Tollet v. Tollet, that relief will not be given in the case of non-execution of a power, there are two cases in which such relief will be given, viz.: (1) Where the execution has been prevented by fraud; and (2) Where the power is coupled with a trust; and an instance of this latter appears in the case of Harding Glynn (infra), though the principal decision in that case was on another point.

Powers may be described as methods of causing a use with its accompanying estate to spring up at the will of any given person (Wms. Real Property, 9th ed. 283). They have been divided as of three kinds, viz.: Appendant, In gross, and Collateral. A power appendant is where the person to whom the power is given has an interest in the estate to which it is annexed; a power in gross is where a person having an interest in the land has power to create an interest therein, but only to take effect after the determination of his own interest. Either powers appendant or in gross may be defeasanced or released. Powers collateral are those given to a person taking no interest in the land, and are in the nature of trusts, so that they cannot be extinguished or destroyed, and Equity will give assistance in the case of non-execution of such powers (see Tudor's Ldg. Cases, Convyg.)

Powers may also be divided into General and Special Powers, the former being where there is a general power to appoint in favour of any person, and the latter where the appointment is limited to a particular class; and with regard to these there is this important difference as regards the rule against perpetuities: general powers having no tendency to perpetuity, the time of vesting is reckoned, not from the creation but from the execution of the power, but special powers having such a tendency, the time of vesting runs from the instrument creating the power (1 Sugd. Powers, 7th ed. 472).

HARDING v. GLYNN.

(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 946.)(1 Atk. 469.)

A testator by his will gave personal property to his wife, but did desire her, at or before her death, to give the same unto and amongst such of his own relations as she should think most deserving and approve of. Decided :— That the wife was only intended to take beneficially during her life, and that so much of the property not disposed of in accordance with the power ought to be divided equally amongst such of the relations of the testator as were his next of kin at the time of his wife's death.

Notes.—In the above case words which merely expressed the wish or desire of the testator were held to constitute a trust, and frequently it is very difficult to determine when and when not a trust will be created by words of that nature. The general rule is, that where property is given absolutely, accompanied with words of recommendation, entreaty, or wish that the donee will dispose of that property in favour of another, such words shall be held to create a trust; but (1) the words must be so used that upon the whole they ought to be construed as imperative; (2) the subject of the recommendation or wish must be certain; and (3) the objects of the recommendation or wish must be certain. Words of recommendation, &c., will not be construed as imperative if an intention appear in any part of the will to give the devisee a right or power to spend the property.

CADELL v. PALMER.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 360.)
 (1 Clark & Finelly, 372.)

Decided :—That a limitation by way of executory devise, which is not to take effect until after the determination of a life or lives in being, and a term of twenty-one years as a term in gross, and without reference to the infancy of any person, is a valid limitation ; a period for gestation to be allowed in those cases in which it actually exists ; but not otherwise.

GRIFFITHS v. VERE.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 430)
 (9 Ves. 127.)

Decided :—That a trust by will for accumulation during a life, contrary to the Thellusson Act (39 & 40 Geo. 3, c. 98), is good for twenty-one years by that statute.

Notes on these two Cases.—In Cadell v. Palmer the limits of the rule against perpetuities were finally ascertained and marked out. The accumulation of the income of property, and the suspension of all enjoyment of it, might be directed for the same period as the suspension of its alienation or vesting ; but in consequence of the extraordinary will of Mr. Thellusson, which provided for the accumulation of the income of his property for a long period, but yet strictly within the time allowed for the creation of executory interests, the statute 39 & 40 Geo. 3, c. 98, was passed. This statute forbids the accumulation of income for any longer periods than (1) the life or lives of the grantor or grantors, settlor or settlors; or (2), the term of twenty-one years from the death of any such grantor, settlor, devisor, or testator; or (3), during the minority or respective minorities of any person or persons who shall be living, or in ventre sa mère at the time of the death of such grantor, devisor, or testator; or (4), during the minority or respective minorities only of any person or persons who under the deed, surrender, will, or other assurance directing such accumulations, would for the time being, if of full age, be entitled to the rents, issues, and profits, or the interest, dividends, or annual produce so directed to be accumulated. Griffiths v. Vere is the leading case upon the construction of this statute, and shews that although the trust for accumulation may exceed the periods allowed by this statute, yet it shall be good for twenty-one years. But it is important to remember that if a direction to accumulate exceeds the limit allowed for the creation of executory interests, it is altogether void and not good even for the twenty-one years. The reason is, that this would have been so before the 39 & 40 Geo. 3, c. 98, and that statute is not an enabling, but a restraining Act only.

Section 2 of 39 & 40 Geo. 3, c. 98, provides that nothing therein contained shall extend to (1) any provision for payment of debts; or (2), any provision for raising portions for any child or children of any grantor, settlor, or devisor, or any child or children of any person taking any interest under any such conveyance settlement, or devise; or (3), any direction touching the produce of timber or wood upon any lands or tenements.

CORBYN v. FRENCH.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 456.)(4 Ves. 418.)

John Brown by his will bequeathed £500 to the trustees of a chapel, to be applied by them towards the discharge of a mortgage on the said chapel. Decided:—That this legacy was void under 9 Geo. 2, c. 36.

Notes.—Statute 9 Geo. 2, c. 36 (The Mortmain Act), provided that no land or money or stock to be laid out in purchasing land should be settled for charitable uses unless (1) by deed indented, sealed and delivered in the presence of two or more witnesses; (2), executed twelve calendar months before death of grantor; (3), inrolled in Chancery within six calendar months after execution; and (4), made to take effect in possession immediately from the making, without any reservation or limitation for the benefit of grantor or any person claiming under him, and as to such stock unless it should be transferred six calendar months before the death of the grantor. But in the case of a purchase for valuable consideration actually paid at or before the making of the conveyance or transfer, the provisions for execution twelve calendar months before grantor's death, and transfer of stock six calendar months before death, are not to apply. Gifts to either of the two universities, or to the colleges of Eton, Winchester, or Westminster, for the better support of the scholars upon the foundations of such colleges are excepted from the operation of the statute.

24 Vict. c. 9, does away with the necessity of indenting the deed, and allows of the reservation of a nominal rent and some other reservations, and provides that the assurance shall not be void by reason, in the case of a sale for full and valuable consideration, of such consideration consisting wholly or in part of a rent-charge or other annual payment. But in all reservations allowed by the Act the vendor must reserve the same benefit for his representatives as for himself.

Although this Act allowed the valuable consideration to consist of a rent-charge, yet there was nothing in it to preserve a conveyance reserving such rent from becoming void by the decease of the vendor within twelve calendar months from the date of the deed. 27 Vict. c. 13, therefore provides that any full and valuable consideration, consisting in whole or in part of a rent or other annual payment, shall be as valid as if actually paid at or before the making of the conveyance.

33 & 34 Vict. c. 34, provides that all corporations and trustees holding moneys in trust for any public or charitable purpose may purchase land in accordance with their trust without being deemed to have infringed the Mortmain Act.

34 Vict. c. 13, exempts from the operation of the Mortmain Act gifts and bequests of land or money to purchase lands for the purposes of (1) Parks; (2) School-houses or elementary schools; and (3) Public museums; but provides that the instrument, if voluntary, must be executed twelve calendar months before the death of the testator or grantor, and be inrolled with the Charity Commissioners within six months after coming into operation; and gifts by will are limited to twenty acres for one park, two acres for one museum, and one acre for one school-house.

35 & 36 Vict. c. 24, provides for the incorporation of trustees of charities by application to the Charity Commissioners, and for their then becoming a corporate body with perpetual succession, and with power to acquire and hold property; but it expressly provides (s. 1) that nothing therein contained shall be taken or construed to extend, modify, or control any of the provisions of 9 Geo. 2. c. 36, or to make valid any gift, grant, or purchase which would be invalid under that Act.

The above are the most important statutes on the subject of mortmain; but further exceptions to the Mortmain Act exist in favour of sites for schools, literary and scientific institutions, and some other objects.

SHELLEY'S CASE.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 507.)

(1 Co. 93 b.)

Decided :—That where the ancestor takes an estate of freehold, and in the same gift or conveyance an estate is limited, either mediately or immediately, to his heirs or the heirs of his body, the word “heirs” is a word of limitation, and not of purchase; so that the ancestor takes the whole estate comprised in the term: that is to say, in the first case, an estate in fee simple; in the second an estate in fee tail.

Notes.—The above “Rule in Shelley's Case” applies to equitable as well as legal estates; but where one limitation is legal and the other equitable it does not apply.

WILD'S CASE.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 581.)

(6 Co. 16 b.)

Decided:—That where there is a devise to a person and his children or issue, and he has no issue at the time of the devise, there such person will take an estate tail.

Notes.—This decision is known as the “Rule in Wild's Case,” and the reason of it is, that as the devisor evidently intended that the devisee's children should take, and they cannot take as immediate devisees, for they are not in existence, nor by way of remainder, because that was not intended ; the words shall be taken as words of limitation.

GARDNER v. SHELDON.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 541.)

(Vaughan, 259.)

Decided:—That a devise to B. after the death of A. gives A. an estate for life by implication, if B. be heir-at-law of testator; but no estate if he be not heir-at-law.

An heir-at-law cannot be disinherited except by necessary implication.

Notes.—The reason of the above decision is, that if B. is not the heir-at-law, it might possibly be considered that the testator intended that during A.'s life the property should descend to his heir-at-law; but if the subsequent devise be to the heir-at-law, it could not be so considered. However, even in this case no estate by implication will arise if there be a residuary devise, for then it might be considered that it was meant that the residuary devisee should take.

VINER v. FRANCIS.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 702.)

(2 Cox, 190.)

Here a testator bequeathed unto the children of his late sister the sum of £2000, to be equally divided among them, and the question was, what children should take. Decided:—That those children should take who were living at the death of the testator.

Notes.—It may be useful here to state shortly the rules for construction of testamentary gifts to children:—

(1) That an immediate gift to children, whether of a living or a deceased person, comprehends all those living at testator's death, and those only.

(2) That where a particular interest is carved out, with a gift over to the children of any person, such gift will embrace not only those living at testator's death, but all who come into existence before the period of distribution.

(3) That where the period of distribution is postponed until the attainment of a given age by the children, the gift will apply to all who come into existence before the first child attains that age.

(4) That where there is an immediate gift to children by will, and at the period when distribution takes place there are no children in existence, all the children born at any future period will take.

(5) The words "to be born" will have the effect of extending the gift to all the children who shall ever come into existence. (2 Jarman on Wills, 3rd ed. 142, 165.)

LEVENTHORPE v. ASHBIE.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 763.)(Rolle's Abr. 831, pl. 1.)

A. devised a term of years to B. and the heirs male of his body begotten. Decided:—That B. was absolutely entitled to the term, and that on his death it went to his executors.

Notes.—It is now well established, in accordance with the above case, that a bequest to a person of chattels, whether real or personal, in such terms as would in the case of a devise of real estate have conferred upon him an estate tail, will as a general rule give him an absolute interest, which on his death will go, not to his heir in tail, but to his personal representative. There can, indeed, in personal property be no estate, for such property is essentially the subject of absolute ownership, and besides the fact of a grant to one and the heirs of his body conferring an absolute interest, so even if any chattel be assigned to one for his life, that person will at once become entitled at law to the whole, and this would be so even were the chattel a term of years of any length.

To this rule there is an exception in the case of a bequest of a term of years to one for life, for on the death of the legatee for life the term is held to shift away and to vest in the person next entitled by way of executory bequest; and although the above-mentioned strict doctrine of the indivisibility of chattels is retained in the Court of Law, yet it is not now observed in Equity, for there the object is to carry out the intention of the parties; and if a chattel is given to A. for life, and afterwards to B., B. has a vested interest in remainder which he may dispose of at pleasure; and if moveable goods are thus given, the Court will compel the life owner to furnish and sign an inventory of the goods, and undertake to take proper care of them; but if the gift is of articles quæ ipse usu consumuntur, as wines, &c., this will always vest in the first donee the absolute interest (see Wms. Psnl. Ppy., 7th ed. 261, 262.)

ELLIOTT v. DAVENPORT.(Lead. Cas. Conv. 803.)(1 P. Wms. 83.)

Testatrix by her will bequeathed unto Sir William Elliott, his executors, administrators, and assigns, the sum of £400 which he owed her, provided that he should there-out pay several sums to his children; and she directed her executors to deliver up the security and not to claim any part of the debt, but to give such release as the said Sir William Elliott should think fit. Sir W. Elliott died in the lifetime of testatrix.

Decided:—That this was a lapsed legacy; and it was admitted on both sides and agreed to by the Court, that the mere addition of the words “executors, administrators, and assigns,” will not prevent a lapse, for they are but surplusage.

Notes.—The same doctrine applies to a limitation to a man “and his heirs.” A mere declaration that a gift shall not lapse will have no effect if there be no substitution for the person dying in testator’s lifetime; but if, together with such a declaration, the gift is to a person and his executors, &c., this will prevent a lapse. The intention of substitution also will be implied, and a lapse thus prevented, where there is a gift to a person “or” his personal representatives.

It must be borne in mind that by 1 Vict. c. 26, ss. 32 & 33, no lapse is to occur (1) in the case of the devise of an estate tail where any issue are living at testator’s death who would be inheritable under such entail, and (2) in the case of a devise or bequest to a child or other issue of the testator who dies leaving issue living at testator’s death.

LORD BRAYBROKE v. INSKIP.(Lead. Cas. Conv. 876.)(8 Ves. 417.)

Decided:—That by a devise in general terms a trust estate will pass, unless an intention to the contrary can be inferred from expressions in the will, or the purposes or objects of the testator.

PAWLETT v. PAWLETT.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 720.)

(1 Vern. 321.)

Lord Pawlett, by settlement, limited certain lands for the purpose (amongst other things) of raising portions for younger children, payable at twenty-one or marriage. One of the daughters died under twenty-one, and unmarried, and her administratrix instituted this suit to obtain payment of her portion. Decided:—That her portion should not be raised for the benefit of her administratrix, though it would have been otherwise in the case of a legacy.

STAPLETON v CHEALES.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 724.)

(Prec. Chan. 317.)

Decided:—(1) That if a legacy is bequeathed to an infant “payable” or “to be paid” at the age of twenty-one years, it is a vested interest, the time of payment only being postponed, so that it shall go to the personal representatives of the infant, though he die before that age.

(2) But if a legacy is bequeathed to an infant “at” twenty-one, or “if” or “when” he shall attain the age of twenty-one, this is a contingency, and if the legatee dies before the appointed age the legacy is lapsed and shall not go to the personal representatives, unless interest is given in the meantime.

HANSON v. GRAHAM.

(Lead. Cas. Conv. 726.)(6 Ves. 239.)

Decided :—That the word “when” standing alone and unqualified in a will is conditional; but that it may be controlled by expressions and circumstances, so as to postpone not the vesting but the payment only, as where the interest of the legacy in the interval is directed to be laid out at the discretion of the executors for the benefit of the legatees.

Notes on these three Cases.—The case of Pawlett v. Pawlett goes to shew that when the party to be benefited dies a portion shall not be raised, though a legacy under similar circumstances would; while the two latter cases shew when it is that a legacy will be considered an actually vested interest, with payment only postponed, and when it will be but a contingency.

MORLEY v. BIRD.(Lead. Cas. Conv. 778.)(3 Ves. 629.)

Decided :—That notwithstanding the leaning of the Court to a tenancy in common, in preference to a joint tenancy, an interest simply given to two or more, either by way of legacy or otherwise, is joint, unless there are words of severance, as “equally among,” or words to the like effect, or unless an inference of that sort arises in Equity from the nature of the transaction, as in partnership, &c.

LAKE v. GIBSON.LAKE v. CRADDOCK.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 177.)(1 Eq. Cas. Ab. 294, pl. 3.)*

Here five persons purchased West Thorock Level from the commissioners of the sewers, and the conveyance was to them as joint tenants in fee, but they contributed rateably to the purchase, which was to the intent of draining the level. Several of them died.

Decided :—That they were tenants in common in equity, for the purchase was for the purpose of a joint undertaking ; and though one of these five persons deserted the partnership for thirty years, yet he was afterwards let in on terms.

Notes on these two Cases.—Morley v. Bird decides that where property is given to several without anything else, that must be a joint tenancy; and Lake v. Gibson and Lake v. Craddock shew the leaning of Equity to a tenancy in common, and that a purchase for a joint undertaking, though the conveyance be to the parties as joint tenants, will constitute a tenancy in common; and this decision forcibly illustrates the maxim, "Equality is equity." Although, if persons purchase an estate and pay equal portions of the purchase-money, and take a conveyance in their joint names, this is a joint tenancy (unless for the purpose of some joint undertaking), yet if the purchase-money is paid in unequal proportions, there will be no survivorship, but they hold the estate in proportion to the sum which each advanced; and in the case of a mortgage to two or more jointly, even though the money is advanced equally, there is no survivorship, but the survivor or survivors will be a trustee or trustees for the personal representatives of the deceased. And the purchase by joint mortgagees of the equity of redemption is unlike an ordinary joint purchase, for they will in Equity still be tenants in common, because the purchase is founded on the mortgage.

Notwithstanding the leaning of the Court of Equity to a tenancy in common as giving really the true equality, yet if property, instead of having been purchased for a partnership, has been devised to the partners as joint tenants, and used by them for partnership purposes, they will still be joint tenants, and not tenants in common, unless by express agreement, or by their course of dealing with it for a long period, an intention to sever the joint tenancy may be inferred (see W. & T.'s Lead. Cas. vol. i. 191).

LORD GLENORCHY v. BOSVILLE.

(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 1.)(Cas. temp. Talbot, 3.)

Here Sir Thomas Pershall devised real estates to trustees upon trust, upon the happening of the marriage of his granddaughter Arabella Pershall, to convey the said estates with all convenient speed to the use of the said Arabella Pershall for life, remainder to husband for life, remainder to the issue of her body, with remainder over. Decided:—That though Arabella Pershall would have taken an estate tail had it been the case of an immediate devise, yet that the trust being executory, was to be executed in a more careful and more accurate manner, and that a conveyance to Arabella Pershall for life, remainder to her husband for life, with remainder to their first and every other son, with remainder to the daughters, would best serve the testator's intent.

Notes.—The above case clearly shews the distinction between executed and executory trusts. In Snell's 'Principles of Equity' an executed trust is defined as one "when no act is necessary to be done to give effect to it, the trust being finally declared by the instrument creating it," and an executory trust as "a trust raised either by stipulation or direction in express terms, or by necessary implication to make a settlement or assurance to uses or upon trusts which are indicated in, but do not appear to be finally declared by, the instrument containing such stipulation or direction." The distinction between these two kinds of trusts forms the best illustration that can be given of the true meaning of the maxim, "Equity follows the Law;" for as regards an executed trust, the same construction will be put on it in Equity as at Law; but as regards an executory trust only, where an analogy plainly subsists, and there is no equitable reason to deviate from the rule. A very material distinction should here be noted between trusts executory in marriage articles and trusts executory in wills; for in the former, from the nature of the transaction, the intention of the parties can always be presumed, whilst in the latter it can only be gathered from the words used in the will; and therefore in wills very frequently a construction must be put on such a trust according to the literal meaning, because there is nothing to guide one to any other construction, though if the same words had been used in marriage articles, the construction would have been different, the object of the marriage articles forming a guide to the intention.

With regard to marriage articles it may be observed, that where there are articles entered into before marriage, and after marriage a settlement is executed, the articles govern; but where both the articles and the settlement are made before the marriage, the parties are concluded by the settlement, unless it recites that it is made in pursuance of the articles, when it will be made subservient to them (see Legg v. Goldwire, 1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 17).

ELLISON v. ELLISON.

(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 245.)(6 Ves. 656.)

Decided :—That there is this distinction as to volunteers, viz. : The assistance of the Court cannot be had without consideration, to constitute a party cestui que trust, as upon a mere voluntary covenant to transfer stock ; but if the legal conveyance is actually made constituting the relation of trustee and cestui que trust, as if the stock is actually transferred, though without consideration, the equitable interest will be enforced.

Notes.—Where a settlor actually constitutes himself a trustee for volunteers, a Court of Equity will enforce the trusts declared ; and such cases as these must be carefully distinguished from those in which it is intended to confer upon persons the whole interest without trustees ; thus, if a person disposes of property informally in favour of a volunteer, no assistance will be given in Equity, but if he simply declares himself to be a trustee of that property, a complete trust is created, and the Court will act upon it.

A conveyance or a declaration of trust in favour of a volunteer cannot be revoked or avoided, except that in the case of an assignment of property in favour of creditors it is revocable until the creditors have assented to the trust, and this whether they are individually named or not.

It must be borne in mind that although, as decided in the above case, Equity will not enforce any executory trust raised by covenant or agreement unless there is a valuable consideration, yet that this does not apply to executory trusts arising under wills, for those will be carried out.

FOX v. MACKRETH.

(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 115.)(2 Cox, 320.)

In this case, the defendant Mackreth, being a trustee for the plaintiff Fox of certain property, agreed to buy such property of him for a sum of £39,500, and such agreement was duly carried out by conveyances being subsequently executed. Mackreth immediately afterwards sold the property to a Mr. Page for £50,500, and the plaintiff discovering this, filed his bill to have advantage of it. Decided:—that Mackreth having purchased the estate from his cestui que trust while the relation of trustee and cestui que trust continued to subsist between them, and without having communicated to the plaintiff the value of the estate acquired by him as trustee, he must be and was declared a constructive trustee as to the sums produced by the sale to Mr. Page.

Notes.—The true ground of the above decision was not the under-value, but, as stated above; but it must be noted that a trustee can purchase from a cestui que trust who is sui juris, and has discharged him from all the obligations which attached to him as trustee; but even then any such transaction will be viewed by the Court with jealousy.

KEECH v. SANDFORD.

(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 44.)
 (Select Cas. in Chancery, 61.)

Here the lease of Rumford Market had been bequeathed to B. in trust for an infant. B. before the expiration of the term applied to the lessor for a renewal of the lease for the benefit of the infant, and this was refused. B. then got a lease made to himself. On this suit being brought by the infant to have the lease assigned to him, Decided: That B. was a trustee of the lease for the infant and must assign the same to him.

ROBINSON v. PETT.

(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 238.)
 (3 P. Wms. 132.)

Decided:—That the Court never allows an executor or trustee for his time and trouble; neither will it alter the case that the executor renounces, and yet is assisting to the executorship; and this, even though it appears that the executor or trustee has benefited the trust to the prejudice of his own affairs.

Notes on these two Cases.—The above two cases are here placed to immediately follow Fox v. Mackreth, as although that case certainly bears on a subject that they do not, viz., purchases by a trustee, yet they all in common are decisions on the position of a trustee, and go to shew that he can make no profit from his trust. If he does so, he becomes a constructive trustee of that profit for his cestui que trust. A fair contract between trustees or executors and their cestui que trust to receive some compensation for acting is, however, good.

Where an executor or trustee is a solicitor, the proper course is to expressly authorize him by the trust instrument to make his proper professional charges, and if he is so authorized he is entitled to do so; but even here he is only allowed for strict professional duties, and would not be allowed charge for doing acts which a trustee or executor would ordinarily do personally without employing a solicitor. If a solicitor is appointed trustee without the proper provision being made for his charges, the rule is just the same as if he were a private person, viz., that he can charge nothing but reasonable expenses out of pocket. However, it has been decided that where one of several trustees is a solicitor, he may be employed by his co-trustees in the trust affairs, and make the usual charges if this does not increase the costs (Cradock v. Piper, 15 L. T. Rep. 61); and it has also been held that if a trustee is one of a firm of solicitors his partners may do the trust business and make professional charges against the trust estate (Clark v. Carlon, 4 L. T. Rep. (N.S.) 361).

HUGUENIN v. BASELEY.(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 556.)(14 Ves. 273.)

Here the plaintiff, Mrs. Huguenin, whilst a widow, constituted the defendant her agent, and he undertook the management of her property and affairs; and she afterwards executed a voluntary settlement in favour of him and his family. Mrs. Huguenin having now married, this suit was brought by her and her husband for the purpose of setting aside the settlement. Decided:—That the settlement should be set aside as obtained by undue influence and abused confidence in the defendant as an agent undertaking the management of her affairs; upon the principles of public policy and utility, applicable to the relation of guardian and ward.

Notes.—The above case forms an instance of a constructive fraud, and proceeds upon the ground of the confidential relation existing between the parties; for it is a rule, that when any such confidence exists, and the party in whom it is reposed makes use of it to obtain an advantage to himself at the expense of the party confiding, he will never be allowed to retain any such advantage, however unimpeachable such transaction would have been if no such confidence had existed.

ELLIOTT v. MERRYMAN.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 59.)(Barnardiston's Chan. Reps. 78.)

Decided:—(1) That where real estate is devised to trustees upon trust to sell for payment of debts generally, or charged with payment of debts, the purchaser is not bound to see that the money is rightly applied; but if the real estate is devised upon trust to be sold for the payment of certain debts, mentioning to whom in particular those debts are owing, the purchaser is bound to see that the money is applied in payment of those debts.

(2) But that a purchaser of leasehold or other personal estate is never liable to see to the application of the purchase-money—except in cases of fraud—because the executors are the proper persons that by law have the power to dispose of a testator's personal estate.

Notes.—It is now enacted by 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, s. 23, as follows:—"The bonâ fide payment to, and the receipt of, any person to whom any purchase or mortgage money shall be payable upon any express or implied trust, shall effectually discharge the person paying the same from seeing to the application or being answerable for the misapplication thereof, unless the contrary shall be expressly declared by the instrument creating the trust or security." It is also enacted, by 23 & 24 Vict. c. 145, s. 29, as follows:—"The receipts in writing of any trustees or trustee for any money payable to them or him by reason, or in the exercise of, any trusts or powers reposed or vested in them or him, shall be sufficient discharges for the money therein expressed to be received, and shall effectually exonerate the persons paying such money from seeing to the application thereof, or from being answerable for any loss or misapplication thereof."

This latter Act is more extensive than the former; but it must be remembered that its provision is not retrospective (see sect. 36), whilst the former appears to be, though there is some difference of opinion on this point. By reason of the joint operation of these enactments the above case has now little practical importance.

DERING v. EARL OF WINCHELSEA.

(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 100.)(1 Cox, 318.)

Here two different bonds had been given to the Crown for the due performance by one Thomas Dering of a certain office, and he becoming in arrear to the Crown, one of the bonds was put in suit, and judgment recovered on it. This suit was then instituted against those who had given the other bond claiming a contribution. Decided:—That though the sureties were bound by different instruments, they must contribute, for the doctrine of contribution amongst sureties is not founded in contract, but is the result of general equity, on the ground of equality of burthen and benefit.

Notes.—And this right of a surety to enforce contribution against co-sureties will not be affected by his ignorance at the time he became surety that they also were co-sureties. Courts of Common Law can also compel contribution between sureties; but there is this important distinction between contribution in Equity and at Common Law: in Equity the contribution is with reference to the time when it is sought to be enforced, but at Common Law with reference to the number of sureties originally liable. Thus: A., B., and C. are securities, and A. is forced to pay the whole amount. B. has become insolvent; nevertheless at Common Law A. can only recover a third from C., though in Equity he can recover half. Further, if a surety dies, contribution can be enforced in Equity as against his representatives; but at Common Law the surviving sureties only can be sued (see Batard v. Hawes, 2 Ell. & B. 287).

With regard to the rights of sureties who are compelled to pay their principal's debt, it is provided by 19 & 20 Vict. c. 97, s. 5, that "every person who being a surety for the debt or duty of another, or being liable with another for any debt or duty shall pay such debt or perform such duty, shall be entitled to have assigned to him, or a trustee for him, every judgment, specialty, or other security which shall be held by the Court in respect of such debt or duty, whether such judgment, specialty, or other security shall or shall not be deemed at law to have been satisfied by the payment of the debt or performance of the duty; and such person shall be entitled to stand in the place of the creditors. Before this statute if the debt was secured by bond or by judgment, and the surety paid the amount, he could not obtain an assignment of the bond or judgment itself, but only of collateral securities.

DYER v. DYER.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 203.)(2 Cox, 92.)

Here one Simon Dyer paid the purchase-money for certain property, and took the conveyance to himself, his wife Mary, and a son William, jointly. Simon Dyer survived his wife, and then died, devising all his interest in these premises to the plaintiff, who filed his bill against the son William, insisting that as the purchase-money was all paid by Simon Dyer, the son William, the defendant, was but a trustee.

Decided:—That though if no relationship existed there would be a resulting trust in favour of the person paying the purchase-money; yet the circumstance of the nominee being the child of the purchaser, operated to rebut the resulting trust, and the defendant took the property beneficially as an advancement from his father.

Notes.—The presumption of advancement does not only arise in favour of a child, but also in favour of a wife. Where a conveyance is taken in the name of a stranger, and therefore by equitable presumption a resulting trust arises, such resulting trust may be rebutted by parol evidence shewing that the person who paid the purchase-money really intended that the person in whose name the conveyance is taken should take the property for his own benefit.

MACKRETH v. SYMONS.

(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 289.)(15 Ves. 329.)

Decided:—(1) That a vendor's lien for unpaid purchase-money, unless relinquished, exists against all persons except purchasers for valuable consideration without notice having the legal estate.

(2) That another security taken and relied on may, according to its nature and the circumstances under which taken, be evidence of relinquishment, but the proof is on the purchaser.

Notes.—A vendor's lien may be defined as that hold or charge on property which a person has who has sold the same, but has not received the purchase-money, or the whole of it. This lien exists even though the deed expresses that the consideration is paid, and a receipt is indorsed on it. It must be borne in mind that (as decided in the above case) the taking of a security is only an evidence of relinquishment by the vendor of his lien; and as a general rule, the taking of a mere personal security will not deprive the vendor of his lien, though, if he take a totally distinct and independent security, the lien is usually lost.

The amount of the purchase-money for which a vendor's lien existed was, of course, payable out of the vendee's general personal estate; but now, in consequence of 30 & 31 Vict. c. 69, s. 2, it is primarily payable out of the land in respect of which it exists.

BRODIE v. BARRY.

(2 V. & B. 127.)

Here property was bequeathed to a person who was testator's heiress to heritable property in Scotland, a disposition of which was made by the will, but in a manner not conformable to the law of Scotland, so that it did not pass under the will, and the question was whether the heiress should be allowed both to take the benefits given to her by the will and the property, which being thus informally dealt with, descended to her as heir-at-law, or whether she should be put to her election. Decided:—That the Scotch heiress could not take both the benefits given her by the will and the property, which being informally dealt with would descend to her; but that she must elect between them.

Notes.—The doctrine of election is stated, in Snell's 'Principles of Equity,' to originate in inconsistent or alternative donations, and it consists in the choosing by a person between two rights where there is an intention, express or implied, that they shall not both be enjoyed. The above case is given here in preference to those of Noys v. Mordaunt and Streatfield v. Streatfield, set out in Messrs. White and Tudor's work, as it forms a very simple and striking example of the doctrine.

It is important to remember that when a person elects against an instrument—that is, refuses to give up his own property—he does not always absolutely forfeit the benefits given him by it, but only so much thereof as will compensate the disappointed party.

Thus, if a testator gives to A. £1000, and to B. a house of small value to which A. is entitled, and A. refuses to conform to the testator's will, he is only bound to give up so much of the £1000 as the house is worth, so as to compensate B.

COUNTESS OF STRATHMORE v. BOWES.

(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 406.)(1 Ves. Jun. 22.)

Lady Strathmore, during her engagement of marriage with one Mr. Grey, conveyed and assigned her property to trustees for her separate use, with his approbation. Afterwards hearing that defendant Bowes had fought a duel on her account, she married him. Bowes had no notice of the settlement. Decided:—That a conveyance by a wife, whatsoever may be the circumstances, and even the moment before the marriage, is primâ facie good, and becomes bad only upon the imputation of fraud, and that if a woman in the course of a treaty of marriage with her makes, without notice to the intended husband, a conveyance of any part of her property, it will be set aside because affected with that fraud, but that this case was different, the settlement indeed being with the sanction of the then intended husband, and so the settlement here was established.

Notes.—A secret conveyance by a woman pending a marriage engagement is a fraud on the husband's marital rights, although he did not know she had any property.

There is one exception to the general rule laid down in Countess of Strathmore v. Bowes, and that is in the case of the previous seduction by a man of his intended wife; for it has been held that, as the husband has by his conduct before the marriage put it out of the wife's power to make any stipulation for settlement of her property, retirement being impossible on her part, a secret settlement made by her shall not be set aside. It was also supposed that another exception existed in the case of a fair settlement by a widow upon her children by a former marriage, but the authorities do not appear to warrant this, and it cannot therefore be considered as an exception.

LADY ELIBANK v. MONTOLIEU.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 424.)(5 Ves. 737.)

Decided:—That a married woman may, by her next friend, maintain a suit in the Court of Chancery to assert her equity to a settlement on herself and children out of property to which she is entitled; and here the settlement on marriage being inadequate, a further settlement decreed in favour of the plaintiff Lady Elibank.

MURRAY v. LORD ELIBANK.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 431.)(10 Ves. 84.)

This case arose out of the foregoing one. After decree in that suit, but before any settlement in pursuance thereof, Lady Elibank died intestate, and this bill was filed by her infant children for the carrying out of the settlement in their favour notwithstanding her death. Decided:—That the wife obtained by the decree in the suit of Lady Elibank v. Montolieu a judgment for the children, liable to be waived if she thought proper; otherwise to be left standing for their benefit at her death.

Notes.—It must, however, be remembered that the equity to a settlement is strictly personal to the wife, and that the children have no independent equity of their own; so that if Lady Elibank had died before decree her children would not have been entitled to any settlement. If the settlement on a woman's marriage is perfectly adequate, no further settlement will be decreed; but when a settlement is decreed, the amount to be settled is usually and in the absence of special circumstances one-half of the property. If after marriage a settlement of property is made upon the wife voluntarily in consideration of her equity to a settlement, it is good as against creditors if the Court would, under the circumstances, have decreed one, had application been made to it for the purpose.

The wife's equity to a settlement forms a good example of the maxim, "He who seeks equity must do equity."

With regard to the wife waiving her right to a settlement, this she can always do (unless she is a female ward of the Court married without its sanction) by her examination in open Court; and by 20 & 21 Vict. c. 57, she can by deed acknowledged under the Fines and Recoveries Act, with the concurrence of her husband, release or extinguish her right to a settlement out of any personal estate to which she or her husband in her right may be entitled in possession, under any instrument made after the 31st of December 1857. This Act makes no provision enabling the wife to waive her right in respect of personal estate derived under an intestacy (Prideaux's Convyg. 7th ed. vol. ii. 152, 153). The wife may also lose her right to a settlement by eloping and living in adultery, unless she is a ward of Court married without its sanction.

HULME v. TENANT.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 481.)(1 Bro. C. C. 16.)

This bill was filed by the obligee of a bond entered into by the defendants (husband and wife) against the husband and wife, and her surviving trustee, to recover the sums secured out of the wife's separate estate. Decided:—That the bond of a married woman jointly with her husband shall bind her separate property.

HUNTINGDON v. HUNTINGDON.(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 1010.)(2 Bro. P. C. 1, Toml. Edit.)

Here the Countess of Huntingdon joined with her husband, the Earl, in a mortgage of her estate of inheritance, for his purposes, and the Earl covenanted to pay the money. He did pay the money, but took an assignment to himself. The mortgage being for a term of years, the Earl devised it for the benefit of his younger children. The Countess died, and also the Earl, and the eldest son filed a bill claiming as heir to the Countess to have the estate freed from the mortgage and the claims of the younger children. Decided:—That he was so entitled, as the wife's estate was but as surety.

TULLETT v. ARMSTRONG.

(1 Beav. 1.)

Here a testator gave certain property to trustees in trust for his wife for life, with remainder to the defendant Mrs. Armstrong (then unmarried) for life in such manner that it should not be anticipated, and that no husband should acquire any control over it, and the questions were as to the effect of a gift to the separate use of a woman unmarried at the time, and the effect of the clause against anticipation. Decided:—That both the separate use clause and the restriction against alienation became effectual on the subsequent marriage, and that such a restraint against alienation is annexed to the separate estate only, and the separate estate has its existence only during coverture, but that whilst the woman is discovert the separate estate, whether modified by restraint or not, is suspended, and has no operation, though it is capable of arising upon the happening of a marriage.

Notes on these three Cases.—Although the separate estate of a married woman may frequently be made liable for her debts, as shewn in Hulme v. Tenant, yet no personal decree can be made against her. As a general rule, this separate estate, unless restrained from anticipation, will be liable for “all debts, &c., which she expressly charges, or which, judging from the nature thereof, it may be fairly inferred that she intended to charge, on her separate estate.” Thus, a promissory note signed by her will bind it; and if she of her own accord employs a solicitor, it will be liable for his charges. In considering the liability of the wife's separate estate, statute 33 & 34 Vict. c. 93, ss. 12, 13, and 14 must be borne in mind.

The case of Huntingdon v. Huntingdon goes to shew, that though the wife's separate estate may have been charged, yet when it is but for the purposes of the husband, it is but as surety for him, and he must ultimately discharge the liability, notwithstanding the way in which the estate was dealt with afterwards. Thus, in that case, the Earl of Huntingdon, on paying off the money, took an assignment of the property to himself, and yet the heir of the wife was held to be entitled to it. But that case must be taken with this limitation, or rather addition, viz., that if the wife's intention clearly appears to have been to alter the limitation of the equity of redemption, effect will be given to that intention. No such intention appeared in that case.

Tullett v. Armstrong is given above as establishing and plainly shewing the effect of the now usual clause against anticipation.

EARL OF CHESTERFIELD v. JANSSEN.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 541.)(2 Ves. 125.)

In this case one Mr. Spencer, at the age of 30, had borrowed £5000 of defendant on the terms of paying £10,000 if he survived his grandmother, from whom he had large expectations, and who was then of the age of 78 years, and nothing if he did not. He did survive her, and after her death gave a bond for payment of the £10,000, and paid a part. Mr. Spencer having since died, his executor brought this suit to be relieved against this contract as usurious and unconscionable. Decided:—Not usurious, and (without deciding whether relief would have been given against the original transaction) no relief could now be given, Mr. Spencer having by his acts after his grandmother's death ratified the transaction.

EARL OF AYLESFORD v. MORRIS.

(Law Reps. 8 Ch. Ap. 484.)

Here the plaintiff, soon after he came of age, and whilst his father was living, borrowed from the defendant, who was a money-lender, sums amounting to about £7000, for which he gave bills, which, with interest and discount, together exceeded 60 per cent. These bills were renewed, and after the death of plaintiff's father, defendant sued plaintiff on the bills, and this suit was brought for an injunction to restrain the actions on payment by the plaintiff of the sums advanced and interest at 5 per cent. Decided:—That the plaintiff was entitled to the relief sought, and that the fact of his being an actual tenant in tail in remainder (as the case was) instead of being merely an expectant heir made no difference.

Notes on these two Cases.—Chesterfield v. Janssen is the leading case on that branch of constructive fraud designated in Snell's 'Principles of Equity' as constructive frauds, as being unconscientious or injurious to the rights of third parties. For although in that case no relief was given because of confirmation by Mr. Spencer of the transaction, yet the particular subject of bargains with expectant heirs was there much considered. As to these, the rule in Equity is to set them aside, unless the purchaser can shew that he paid full consideration, and that the bargain being made known to those to whose estate the expectant was hoping to succeed, was approved of by them. This relief thus given to expectant heirs was formerly also given to remaindermen and reversioners, but is so no longer, 31 Vict. c. 4, s. 1, enacting that "No purchase, made bonâ fide and without fraud or unfair dealing, of any reversionary interest in real or personal estate shall hereafter be opened or set aside merely on the ground of undervalue;" and by sect. 2 the word "purchase" used in sect. 1 has an extended meaning.

The case of Earl of Aylesford v. Morris is the most recent decision on the subject of bargains from expectant heirs; and whilst the former principles and rules on the subject are confirmed, they seem also to be a little extended, for in that case the plaintiff was not simply an expectant heir, but he was an actual tenant in tail in remainder, and yet it was held that this made no difference, and relief was given.

The Infants' Relief Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 62), may here be noticed, as it might possibly sometimes affect cases of bargains with expectant heirs. It provides that all contracts made with infants, except for necessities, shall be absolutely void, and that no action shall ever be brought upon a ratification of an infant's contract.

MARSH v. LEE.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 611.)(2 Ventris, 337.)

Decided:—That if a third mortgagee having advanced his money, without notice of a second mortgage, afterwards buy in a first mortgage or statute, yet the third mortgagee having obtained the first mortgage or statute, and having the law on his side and equal equity, he shall thereby squeeze out and gain priority over the second mortgagee.

BRACE v. DUCHESS OF MARLBOROUGH.(2 P. Wms. 491.)

Decided:—That if a judgment creditor, or creditor by statute or recognizance, buys in the first mortgage he shall not tack this to his judgment, &c., and thereby gain a preference, for he did not advance his money on the immediate credit of the land; but if a first mortgagee lends a further sum to the mortgagor upon a statute or judgment he shall retain against a mesne mortgagee till both the mortgage and statute or judgment be paid.

Notes on these two Cases.—In the latter of the above two cases the doctrine of tacking was much considered, and a number of rules on the subject were stated, but the points above set out are the most important to remember in connection with the decision in Marsh v. Lee. It is very important to know accurately when tacking will be allowed, and when not, and the student will be more likely to remember the distinctions if he bears in mind that tacking is not allowed when the money was not originally advanced on the immediate credit of the land.

The doctrine of tacking forms a good illustration of the maxim, "Where the equities are equal the law shall prevail;" for the third mortgagee being without notice of the intervening incumbrance, has as good a title in conscience as such incumbrancer, and by getting hold of the first mortgage, &c., he has the law on his side.

An important provision has been made by statute 37 & 38 Vict. c. 78, s. 7 (The Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874), it providing that no priority shall in future be gained by tacking, but this is not to take away any right or protection which but for this section would have been given before the commencement of the Act.

BASSETT v. NOSWORTHY.

(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 1.)
(Rep. temp. Finch, 102.)

This bill was filed by an heir-at-law against a person claiming as purchaser from a devisee under the will of his ancestor to discover a revocation of the will, and the defendant pleaded that he was a purchaser for valuable consideration bonâ fide, without notice of any revocation.

Decided:—That this plea was good, and upon proof of it, the bill was dismissed.

Notes.—The above case is inserted here so as to follow those on the doctrine of tacking, as it forms another illustration of the maxim, “Where the equities are equal the law shall prevail.”

As an extension of the above case, it should be noted that where a person has the best right to call for the legal estate, he will be entitled to the protection of Equity in the same way as if he had actually obtained it.

DUKE OF ANCASTER v. MAYER.

(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 630.)(1 Bro. C. C. 454.)

Decided :—That the general personal estate is primarily liable to the payment of the debts of the testator, unless exempted by express words or by necessary implication.

Notes.—It may be useful to give here a short statement of, firstly, the order in which assets are applied in payment of debts; and, secondly, when the general personal estate is not the primary fund for that purpose.

Firstly. The order is as follows :—

- (1) The general personal estate.
- (2) Estates devised for the particular purpose of paying debts.
- (3) Estates descended.
- (4) Property devised or bequeathed to particular devisees or legatees, but charged with payment of debts.
- (5) (a) General legacies; (b) Lands comprised in a residuary devise; (c) Specific legacies and specifically devised lands. (This is in accordance with the decision in Hensman v. Fryer, L. R. 3 Ch. Ap. 420; but formerly it was considered that these assets were only applicable in the order named. See hereon the observations of Mr. Snell in his 'Principles of Equity,' 2nd ed. pp. 234, 235.)
- (6) Property over which the person whose estate is being administered has exercised a general power of appointment.

Secondly. The personal estate is not the primary fund for payment of debts in the following cases :—

- (1) Where it is exempted by express words.
- (2) Where it is exempted by testator's manifest intention;

and on this point the fact that the testator has charged his real estate is not alone sufficient, but he must also have shewn that it was his purpose that the personal estate should not be applied.

- (3) Where the debt forming the charge or incumbrance is in its own nature real.
- (4) Where the debt was not contracted by the person whose estate is being administered, but by some one else from whom he or his vendor took it, as in the case of a mortgage created by an ancestor.
- (5) In cases coming within the provisions of 17 & 18 Vict. c. 113, or 30 & 31 Vict. c. 69.

RUSSEL v. RUSSEL.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 674.)(1 Bro. C. C. 269.)

Here a lease had been pledged with the plaintiff by a person since bankrupt, and the plaintiff now brought his bill against the assignees for a sale of the leasehold estate.

Decided:—That the deposit created a good equitable mortgage.

Notes.—An equitable mortgage by deposit of title deeds is now of common occurrence, but the above case is cited to shew that such a transaction is good, notwithstanding the 4th section of the Statute of Frauds (29 Car. 2, c. 3)—a point which was previously, and with reason, much doubted.

CUDDEE v. RUTTER.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 786.)(5 Vin. Ab. 538, pl. 21.)

Decided:—That a bill in equity will not lie for specific performance of an agreement to transfer a certain sum of South Sea Stock, for there is no difference between that and any other like sum of stock, and no damage occasioned by the non-performance of the agreement specifically, if the difference is paid.

SETON v. SLADE.(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 513.)(7 Ves. 265.)

Here plaintiff had agreed to sell certain property to defendant, and it was understood that he should make a good title in two months, and defendant gave him a notice that if he did not do so he should insist on the return of his deposit with interest. The plaintiff, however, only delivered his abstract a few days before the expiration of the two months, which the defendant then received and kept without objection. Decided:—That the vendee upon construction of the circumstances was not entitled to insist on time as of the essence of the contract, and so specific performance decreed.

LESTER. v. FOXCROFT.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 768.)(Colles' P. C. 108.).

Here a certain parol contract had been made for the pulling down by the plaintiff of certain houses and the building up of others, and the granting of a lease thereof to him, and he had in pursuance and part performance of such parol contract pulled down the houses and built some of the others. The plaintiff brought this bill for specific performance of the contract. Decided:—That the plaintiff was entitled to a decree for specific performance notwithstanding the Statute of Frauds, because of the acts of part performance on his part.

WOOLLAM v. HEARN.(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 484.)(7 Ves. 211.)

Decided:—That though a defendant resisting specific performance may go into parol evidence to shew that by fraud the written agreement does not express the real terms, a plaintiff cannot do so for the purpose of obtaining specific performance with a variation.

Notes on these four Cases.—These cases are placed together as all relating to the subject of specific performance. Cuddee v. Rutter plainly shews the nature of the contracts of which specific performance will be granted, viz., those for the breach whereof damages will not fully compensate; and Seton v. Slade shews that though terms may not have been strictly complied with, yet specific performance may be decreed. But in such a case the Court will take care to make proper compensation. And this principle of decreeing specific performance with compensation is applied where the vendor seeks specific performance and has not exactly the interest he contracted to sell, but the difference is not material; but a purchaser cannot be forced to accept lands of a different tenure to what he contracted to buy, for this is not considered a matter for compensation.

The decision in Lester v. Foxcroft is upon the ground, that after a person has been allowed to do acts in part performance, it would be a fraud on the part of the person who has allowed him to do such acts not to perform his part of the contract. Acts to be a part performance must be exclusively referable to the agreement, and such acts as payment of purchase-money, delivery of abstract, and the like, are not sufficient part performance; but letting a purchaser into possession is.

There are also two other cases in which specific performance of a parol contract will be decreed; and they are stated by Mr. Snell in his 'Principles of Equity' to be (1) where it is fully set forth in the bill, and is confessed by the answer of the defendant, who does not insist on the statute as a defence; and (2) where the agreement was intended to be reduced into writing according to the statute, but that was prevented by the fraud of one of the parties.

With regard to the decision in Woollam v. Hearn, though good as a general rule, yet it must be noted that there are three cases in which a plaintiff may obtain specific performance with a subsequent parol variation, and they are of a similar nature to the three cases above stated in which specific performance will be decreed of an original parol contract, viz.: (1) after such acts of part performance of the parol variation; (2) where defendant sets up the parol variation, and plaintiff seeks specific performance with it; and (3) where it has not been put into writing because of fraud. It will be seen that these cases are of an exactly similar nature to those above stated, in which specific performance will be decreed of an original parol contract.

Although by the C. L. P. Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 125), s. 68, an action of mandamus is given at law to compel the performance of certain duties in the fulfilment of which the plaintiff is personally interested, yet it has been decided that a person cannot be compelled under that Act to perform a contract entered into by him, it only applying to cases of duty arising under a statute or royal charter in which the public as well as the plaintiff are interested. (Benson v. Paul, 25 L. J. (Q.B.) 274; Sm.'s C. L. Manl., 4th ed. 446.)

PUSEY v. PUSEY.

(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 820.)(1 Vern. 273.)

The plaintiff brought this bill for specific delivery up of a certain horn which in ancient time was delivered to his ancestors to hold their land by. The defendant demurred to this bill. Decided:—That the demurrer must be overruled, and that the heir was well entitled to the horn.

DUKE OF SOMERSET v. COOKSON.

(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 821.)(3 P. Wms. 389.)

The plaintiff, as lord of a certain manor, was entitled as treasure-trove to an old altar-piece made of silver, remarkable for a Greek inscription and dedication to Hercules, and the defendant had obtained possession of the same. This suit was brought to obtain its delivery up in specie undefaced, and the defendant demurred. Decided:—That this demurrer must be overruled.

Notes on these two Cases.—In the same way that the Court of Chancery will only decree specific performance of a contract when it is one for the breach whereof damages will not compensate, so the reason of the above decisions is that the chattel was of such a nature that the loss of it could not be fully compensated for by damages. There is, however, one case in which Equity will decree specific delivery of a chattel though of no peculiar value, and that is where there subsists some fiduciary relation between the parties. Specific delivery of a chattel may now, to a certain extent, be obtained at law, for by the C. L. P. Act, 1854 (17 & 18 Vict. c. 125), s. 78, the Court may, upon the application of the plaintiff in an action for the detention of a chattel, order that execution shall issue for the return of the same without giving the defendant the option of retaining it, upon paying the value assessed; but a Court of Law under this enactment can only proceed to enforce the delivery by distringas, whilst a decree in Equity for specific delivery can be enforced by attachment. Also, by 19 & 20 Vict. c. 97, s. 2, the Courts of Law have a further power of this nature given them, and in cases in which generally Equity would not interfere, for it is enacted, that on a verdict for plaintiff in an action for breach of contract to deliver specific goods for a price of money, on the application of the plaintiff, and by leave of the judge, the jury shall find, (1) What are the goods in respect of which action is brought; (2) What (if anything) the plaintiff would have been liable to pay for delivery thereof; (3) What damages (if any) the plaintiff will be entitled to if the goods are delivered in execution as thereafter mentioned; and (4) What damages if not so delivered. And thereupon, on the plaintiff's application, the judge may order execution to be issued for delivery of the goods themselves on payment by the plaintiff of the sum (if anything) found by the jury to be paid by him, without giving the defendant the option of retaining the same upon paying the damages assessed.

FLETCHER v. ASHBURNER.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 826.)(1 Bro. C. C. 497.)

Decided :—That it is an established principle that money directed to be employed in the purchase of land, and land directed to be sold and turned into money, are to be considered as that species of property into which they are directed to be converted ; and this, in whatever way the direction is given ; and, therefore, in this case that real estate having been ordered to be sold, it became personalty, and went accordingly.

ACKROYD v. SMITHSON.(1 Lead. Cas. Eq. 872.)(1 Bro. C. C. 503.)

Here the testator gave several legacies, and ordered his real and personal estate to be sold, his debts and legacies to be paid out of the proceeds arising from the sale, and the residue thereof he gave to certain legatees. Two of these residuary legatees died in the testator's lifetime ; and this bill was filed by the next of kin of the testator claiming these lapsed shares, and the question was whether such shares—being originally composed partly of real and partly of personal estate—belonged to the next of kin as being converted into personalty, or whether the part originally composed of real estate resulted as real estate, and therefore descended to the heir-at-law of the testator.

Decided:—That so far as the shares were originally constituted of personal estate they should go to the next of kin; but so far as they originally consisted of real estate they should go to the heir-at-law.

Notes on these two Cases.—"Equity looks on that as done which ought to be done." It is upon this maxim that the case of Fletcher v. Ashburner proceeds, and that case, or more generally the whole doctrine of conversion, forms indeed the best illustration of this maxim. Conversion has been well defined as "that change in the nature of property by which, for certain purposes, real estate is considered as personal, and personal estate as real, and transmissible and descendible as such." To effect a conversion it is necessary that the direction to convert be imperative and not optional, and a direction to convert at the request of certain parties will be held imperative unless it is inserted for the purpose of giving a discretion to those parties.

The case of Ackroyd v. Smithson is sometimes confused by students with that of Fletcher v. Ashburner as simply deciding the doctrine of conversion, and they are chiefly for that reason considered here together. Ackroyd v. Smithson is of course quite beyond the doctrine of conversion, and forms an instance of a resulting trust, shewing that where the purposes of the conversion fail there the property shall remain and go in its original state; thus if a testator devises to trustees to sell and divide the proceeds between two persons, and they die during the testator's lifetime, the property remains in its original state, and if only one of the parties dies, there as to his moiety there will be no conversion, but it will go according to its original quality, and the principle of this is, that where an estate is converted merely for a particular purpose, and that fails, the Court will not infer an intention to convert for any other purpose. Ackroyd v. Smithson is only on the point of a resulting trust in the case of real estate directed to be sold, and it was at first doubted whether the rule there established applied to the case of money directed to be laid out in the purchase of land to be settled upon trusts which either wholly or partially failed ; but it has now long been decided that it does so apply.

LE NEVE v. LE NEVE.

(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 35.)(Amb. 436.)

Here lands in Middlesex were settled by a deed which was not registered. Many years afterwards they were settled on a second marriage, and the settlement was duly registered; but the agent of the person taking the lands under the second settlement had notice of the former. Decided:—That the object of the Register Act being only to secure subsequent purchasers and mortgagees against prior secret conveyances and fraudulent conveyances, the former settlement should be preferred because of the notice, and that notice to an agent or trustee is notice to the principal.

Notes.—An interest in property is often rendered subservient to a prior interest by reason of notice, where, if there had been no such notice, the latter would have had the preference. Notice may be either actual or constructive, which last is, in fact, only evidence of notice the presumption of which is so violent that the Court will not allow of its being controverted; and whatever is sufficient to put a person upon inquiry is constructive notice of everything to which that inquiry might have led; thus absence of title deeds may constitute constructive notice of some prior interest, but if their absence is satisfactorily accounted for it will not.

It should be mentioned that the mere fact of the registration of a deed affecting lands in a register county is not of itself notice, so that a prior equitable incumbrance will not, although registered, affect a subsequent purchaser for valuable consideration without notice who has obtained the legal estate.

HOWE v. EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 320.)(7 Ves. 137.)

Decided:—That it is a general rule that where personal property is bequeathed for life with remainders over, and not specifically, it is to be converted into the three per cents., subject in the case of a real security to an inquiry, whether it will be for the benefit of all parties, and the tenant for life is entitled 'only upon this principle; thus wasting property is converted for the benefit of persons in remainder, future interests for the benefit of the tenant for life.

Notes.—But the testator may by his will shew an intention that the property as it then exists shall be specifically enjoyed, and the Court rather leans in favour of this construction so far as it is consistent with the decision in the above case.

The rule laid down in the case of Howe v. Earl of Dartmouth has been stated as follows:—"Where personal estate is given in terms amounting to a general residuary bequest to be enjoyed by persons in succession, the interpretation the Court puts upon the bequest is that the persons indicated are to enjoy the same thing in succession, and in order to effectuate that intention the Court, as a general rule, converts into permanent investments so much of the personalty as is of a wasting or perishable nature at the death of the testator, and also reversionary interests. The rule did not originally ascribe to testators the intention to affect such conversions except in so far as a testator may be supposed to intend that which the law will do; but the Court, finding the intention of the testator to be that the object of his bounty shall take successive interests in one and the same thing, converts the property as the only means of giving effect to that intention." (W. & T.'s Ldg. Cases in Eq. vol. ii. 335).

HOOLEY v. HATTON.

(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 346.)(1 Bro. C. C. 390, n.)

Lady Finch, by her will, gave the plaintiff a legacy of £500, and afterwards, by a codicil, a legacy of £1000, and the question was whether the last legacy alone passed or the legatee should have both. Decided:—That the plaintiff was entitled to both legacies; but that if a legacy of the same amount is given twice for the same cause, and in the same act, and in the same, or nearly the same, words, then it will not be double; but where in different writings there is a bequest of equal, greater, or less sums, it is an augmentation.

Notes.—Although it would appear from this case that if the legacies are given by different instruments, they will never be considered as a repetition, yet this is not quite so, for even then, if they are for the same sum and the same motive, the Court presumes that they are but a repetition, but both these coincidences must exist.

It is important to observe whether extrinsic evidence can be given to shew whether a testator intended a legacy to be by way of augmentation or as a repetition, as if so the rules laid down in the above case might often be altered, and it is established on this point that where the Court raises the presumption against double legacies it will receive parol evidence to shew that the testator actually intended the double gift he has expressed, for that but rebuts the presumption of the Court, and supports the apparent intention of the will ; but where the Court raises no presumption, as where legacies are given by different instruments, it will not admit parol evidence to shew testator only meant the legatee to take one, for that would be to contradict the will.

EX PARTE PYE.

(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 365.)(18 Ves. 140.)

Decided:—(1) That as a general rule, where a parent gives a legacy to a child, not stating the purpose with reference to which he gives it, he is understood to give a portion ; and in consequence of the leaning against double portions, if the parent afterwards advances a portion on the marriage of the child, the presumption arises that it was intended to be a satisfaction of the legacy either wholly or in part ; and this applies where a person puts himself in loco parentis.

(2) But no such presumption arises in the case of a stranger or of a natural child, where the donor has not put himself in loco parentis, unless the subsequent advance is proved to be for the very purpose of satisfying the legacy ; and therefore the legatee will be entitled to both.

TALBOT v. DUKE OF SHREWSBURY.

(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 379.)

(Prec. Ch. 394.)

Decided:—That if a debtor, without taking notice of the debt, bequeaths a sum as great as, or greater than, the debt, to his creditor, this is a satisfaction ; but it is not a satisfaction if it is bequeathed on a contingency, or if it were less than the debt.

CHANCEY'S CASE.

(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 380.)

(1 P. Wms. 408.)

Testator during his lifetime, and before making his will, gave his servant a bond for £100. He afterwards made his will and bequeathed her £500, and directed that all his debts and legacies should be paid.

Decided:—That the legacy was not here a satisfaction of the debt, because it was attended with particular circumstances varying it from the common rule, for the testator had directed that all his debts and legacies should be paid.

Notes on these three Cases.—These three cases are all authorities on and illustrations of the doctrine of satisfaction, the first being as to satisfaction of legacies by portions, and the latter two as to satisfaction of debts by legacies. Satisfaction may be defined as the giving by a person liable to some claim of the donee, of something different from the subject of such claim, but intended in substitution thereof. The cases where satisfaction occurs have been divided into four classes, viz.: (1) the satisfaction of debts by legacies; (2) satisfaction of legacies by subsequent legacies; (3) the satisfaction of legacies by portions; and (4) the satisfaction of portions by legacies (see Snell's 'Principles of Equity,' 2nd ed. 197). It is important to remember the great difference that exists in satisfaction in the case of portions on the one hand, and in the case of legacies to creditors on the other; for in the first case Equity, leaning against double portions, will be in favour of the satisfaction, but in the latter case it is just the opposite, for Equity will take hold of slight circumstances to rebut the presumption of satisfaction that would otherwise arise, and this is well exemplified by Chancey's Case.

WILCOCKS v. WILCOCKS.(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 415.)(2 Vern. 558.)

The plaintiff's father, upon his marriage, covenanted to purchase lands of the value of £200 per annum, and settle the same upon himself for life and to his first and other sons in tail. He purchased lands of that value, but made no settlement or disposition thereof, so that they descended to the plaintiff as heir-at-law. Decided:—That the plaintiff was not entitled to specific performance of the covenant, but that the lands descended must be taken as a performance or satisfaction thereof.

BLANDY v. WIDMORE.(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 417.)(1 P. Wms. 323.)

In marriage articles the husband covenanted to leave his wife £620 if she should survive him. He died intestate, and the wife's share, under the Statute of Distributions, far exceeded £620. Decided:—That the wife was not entitled to have the £620 and her distributive share, but the distributive share must be taken as a satisfaction or performance of the covenant.

Notes on these two Cases.—The doctrine of "Performance" which is illustrated by the above cases bears rather closely on that of satisfaction; but on a very short consideration of the subject, and a comparison of the cases on satisfaction (see pp. 76-78) with those above given on performance, the distinction will be obvious. The distinction has been stated to be that "satisfaction implies the substitution or gift of something different from the thing agreed to be given, but equivalent to it in the eye of the law, while in cases of performance the thing agreed to be done is in truth wholly or in part performed." Wilcocks v. Wilcocks and Blandy v. Widmore exemplify the maxim, which is shortly stated, as "Equity imputes an intention to fulfil an obligation." In Wilcocks v. Wilcocks it will be seen that the lands there purchased were of equal value with those covenanted to be settled, but it has been since decided that even where the lands purchased are of less value; they shall be considered as in part performance of the covenant.

It should be mentioned that it has been decided that although a distributive share on an intestacy will be taken as performance of a covenant, yet a gift by will of a sum of money as a residue will not so operate per se, because it imports bounty.

EYRE v. COUNTESS OF SHAFTESBURY.

(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 645.)(2 P. Wms. 103.)

The former Earl of Shaftesbury, by his will, gave the guardianship of his infant son to the plaintiff and two others, since deceased, without expressing that it was to be to the survivor of them, and the plaintiff now prayed that the infant (who was in his mother's custody) might be delivered up to him as his guardian. Decided:—That though the guardianship was only given to the three persons, without saying, “and to the survivors or survivor of them,” yet the survivor—the plaintiff—should have it.

Afterwards, when the infant was of the age of fourteen years, his mother, the Countess, procured his marriage with one Lady Susannah Noel, without the consent or privity of the plaintiff, the guardian. Decided:—That the Countess was liable for a contempt of Court, although the marriage was in other respects proper.

Notes.—There are properly six species of guardianship, viz.: (1) By nature; (2) By nurture; (3) In socage; (4) By statute; (5) By appointment of the Court of Chancery; (6) Ad litem. There is also guardianship by custom, and the quite obsolete species of guardianship by election.

The above is the leading case on the nature of the guardianship and the guardian's powers under the statute of 12 Car. 2, c. 24

That statute gives the *father the power by deed executed in writing, or by his last will and testament, to appoint the custody and tuition of such of his children as at the time of his death are neither of full age nor married until they attain the age of twenty-one years, or during any less period. This statute of course only gives the power to the father; but a stranger may, to a certain extent, appoint a guardian, for such an appointment will be effectual if there is a legacy to the father conditional on his giving up the guardianship, which legacy the father elects to take, or if it is manifestly for the benefit of the infants, and the duty of the father to acquiesce in the appointment; but the benefit to the infant must be a solid consideration, and not merely expectations.

By statute 2 & 3 Vict. c. 54, it was provided that judges in Equity might make orders on petition for the access of mothers to their infant children, and if such children were within the age of seven years for delivery of them into the mother's custody until attaining such age of seven years; but no order was to be made under such provision in favour of a mother against whom adultery had been established. This statute is now repealed by the 36 & 37 Vict. c. 12, which in lieu thereof provides (sect. 1) that the Court of Chancery may order mothers to have access to or custody or control of their children until such children shall attain such age as the Court shall direct. Section 2 of the same statute provides that no agreement in a separation deed for the father giving up the custody of his children to the mother shall be invalid, but the same is not to be enforced by the Court if it is of opinion that it will not be for the benefit of the infant or infants to give effect to it.

* The above statute gives this power to the father, whether he is of full age or not; but now, as by the Wills Act (1 Vict. c. 26) an infant cannot make a valid will, he cannot appoint a guardian by will.

STAPILTON v. STAPILTON.

(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 824.)(1 Atk. 2.)

Decided:—That an agreement entered into upon a supposition of a right, or of a doubtful right, though it after comes out that the right was on the other side, shall be binding, and the right shall not prevail against the agreement of the parties; for the right must always be on one side or the other, and therefore the compromise of a doubtful right is a sufficient foundation of an agreement.

That where agreements are entered into to save the honour of a family, and are reasonable ones, a Court of Equity will, if possible, decree a performance of them.

GORDON v. GORDON.

(3 Swanst. 400.)

Here there had been an agreement between two brothers for the settlement of the family estates, as the younger disputed the elder's legitimacy. At the time of the agreement, however, the younger brother was aware of a private marriage that had taken place, and this was not communicated to the other. The legitimacy of the elder brother was afterwards established, and although some nineteen years had elapsed, Decided:—That the agreement must be rescinded because of the concealment by the younger brother of the fact of the private marriage, and that it mattered not whether the omission to disclose it originated in design or in an honest opinion of the invalidity of the ceremony and a want of obligation on his part to make the communication.

Notes on these two Cases.—The rule as to family compromises is laid down in Snell's 'Principles of Equity' (2nd ed. p. 360) thus:—"In order that a transaction not otherwise valid may be supported upon the ground of it being a family arrangement, there must be a full and fair communication of all material circumstances affecting the subject matter of the agreement which are within the knowledge of the several parties, whether such information be asked for by the other party or not."

Stapilton v. Stapilton is given in Messrs. White and Tudor's Book as the leading case on this subject; but the facts and decision in Gordon v. Gordon are also given above, as it is thought that it constitutes a more forcible illustration of the subject.

BRICE v. STOKES.

(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 865.)(11 Ves. 319.)

The question in this case was, whether a trustee should be charged with certain purchase-money, which, though he had joined in the receipt, had been received by his co-trustee. Decided:—That under the particular circumstance of the case he was liable to be charged, the sale being unnecessary, and he permitting his co-trustee to keep and act with the money contrary to the trust; but that he should not be charged in respect of the interest of one of the cestuis que trust who had notice of the breach of trust and acquiesced therein; and it was laid down that there is this great distinction between trustees and executors, viz., that though where trustees or executors join in a receipt, primâ facie all are presumed or considered to have received the money, yet it is competent for a trustee to exonerate himself by shewing that the money acknowledged to have been received by all was, in fact, received by one, and the other joined only for conformity; but an executor cannot do this, for it is not necessary for him to join in the receipt (as it is in the case of a trustee), and therefore if he does join, he is to be considered as assuming a power over the fund, and therefore answerable.

Notes.—But if the joining of a co-executor in a receipt was absolutely necessary, the usual rule as to executors will not apply, but the rule as to trustees, because as the joining was necessary there is no evidence that the executor so joining thereby assumed a control over the fund, which is the ordinary presumption.

Besides deciding this distinction between the receipts of trustees and executors Brice v. Stokes is also, as appears above, an authority to shew that acquiescence in a breach of trust discharges a trustee.

PENN v. LORD BALTIMORE.

(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 923.)(1 Ves. 444.)

Here the plaintiff and defendant being in England, had entered into articles for settling the boundaries of two provinces in America—Pennsylvania and Maryland, and the plaintiff sought a specific performance of the articles. The principal objection was that the property was out of the jurisdiction of the Court. Decided:— That the plaintiff was entitled to specific performance of the articles, for though the Court had no original jurisdiction on the direct question of the original right of the boundaries, the property being abroad, yet that did not at all matter, as the suit was founded on the articles, and the Court acted in personam.

Notes.—The above case forms a good illustration of the well-known maxim or principle, “Equity acts in personam,” a maxim which, indeed, shews the great difference in the jurisdiction of Equity to that of Law; thus at Law the only remedy on a breach of contract was an action for damages: but in Equity, as the Court acted in personam, the party could always be compelled to do the very act.

PEACHEY v. DUKE OF SOMERSET.(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 1082.)(1 Stra. 447.)

Here the plaintiff was tenant of copyhold lands in a manor, of which the defendant was lord. He committed acts of forfeiture by making leases contrary to the custom, without licence, and by felling timber, &c., and he now brought this suit offering to make compensation, and praying relief from the forfeitures.

Decided :—That the plaintiff was not entitled to relief; and that the true ground of relief against penalties is from the original intent of the case, where the penalty is designed only to secure money, and the Court can give by way of recompense all that was expected or desired.

SLOMAN v. WALTER.(2 Lead. Cas. Eq. 1094.)(1 Bro. C. C. 418.)

The plaintiff and defendant were partners in the Chapter Coffee House, and it had been agreed that defendant should have the use of a particular room when he wanted it, and the plaintiff gave a bond to secure this. Upon breach of the agreement, defendant brought an action for the penalty of the bond, and the plaintiff brought this suit for an injunction and for the actual damage sustained by defendant to be assessed.

Decided :—That plaintiff was entitled to an injunction, and that the rule is that where a penalty is inserted merely to secure the enjoyment of a collateral object, the enjoyment of the object is considered as the principal intent of the deed, and the penalty only as additional, and to secure the damages really incurred.

Notes on these two Cases.—The rule as to when Equity will relieve in the case of penalties is well stated in the latter of the above two cases, whilst the former case shews an instance beyond the relief of Equity. It should be observed also that Sloman v. Walter shews that the jurisdiction of Equity as to relief against penalties is not so limited as to extend only to those penalties to secure payment of a sum of money, as might appear from Peachey v. Duke of Somerset, but that it also extends to penalties to secure performance of some collateral act.

LANDSDOWNE v. LANDSDOWNE.

(2 Jacob & Walker, 205.)

In this case the plaintiff, who was a son of the eldest brother of a deceased intestate, had a dispute with his uncle, a younger brother, respecting the right to inherit the real estate of the deceased. They referred the matter to a schoolmaster, who, acting on the axiom "land cannot ascend, but always descends," awarded in favour of the uncle (the younger brother).

This bill was filed by the son of the elder brother to be relieved.

Decided :—That the plaintiff was entitled to relief, and decreed accordingly, notwithstanding the maxim, Ignorantia legis non excusat.

EARL OF BEAUCHAMP v. WINN.

The late Earl of Beauchamp and the defendant had entered into an exchange of property, including a certain warren of conies, both proceeding upon the belief that the Earl had only the right of warren over the lands, and that defendant had the right to the lands themselves. Subsequently the original lease was found, and the Earl considered that it passed to him not merely the right of warren, but the right to the land itself. This suit was commenced to rescind the agreement for exchange as being entered into in mutual ignorance and mistake. It was held by the judges that the words in the lease did not carry the soil but only the right of warren, but had it been otherwise, relief might have been given to the plaintiff; and the following points on the subject of mistake were laid down :—

1. Where in the making of an agreement between two parties there has been a mutual mistake as to their rights occasioning an injury to one of them, the rule of Equity is in favour of interposing to grant relief.

2. Although the parties have subsequently to the agreement dealt with the property, or other circumstances have intervened, so that it may be difficult to restore them to their original condition, the Court will not, if a ground for relief is established, decline to grant such relief.

3. The rule, Ignorantia legis non excusat, though applying where the alleged ignorance is that of a well-known rule of law, does not so apply where the mistake is of a matter of law arising upon the doubtful construction of a grant.

4. Acquiescence in what has been done will not be a bar to relief where the party alleged to have acquiesced has acted, or abstained from acting, through being ignorant that he possessed rights which would be available against that which he permitted to be enjoyed.

Notes.—A mistake as remediable in Equity is defined by Mr. Snell in his ‘Principles of Equity’ as “Some unintentional act, or omission, or error, arising from ignorance, surprise, imposition, or misplaced confidence.”

It is usually said that "Ignorantia facti excusat," but "Ignorantia legis non excusat;" but these two simple maxims do not at all adequately answer the question, When will Equity give relief in cases of mistake? This is, indeed, a question rather difficult to answer properly in a short space; but the law on the subject seems to be as follows: Mistakes may be divided into (1) Mistakes in matters of fact, and (2) Mistakes in matters of law; and as to the latter no relief will be given, except where the mistake is one of title arising from ignorance of a principle of law of such constant occurrence as to be supposed to be understood by the community at large. The case of Landsdowne v. Landsdowne given above is on this exception, the reason of which is, that a mistake in such a matter affords a conclusive presumption of ignorance, imposition, or the like. The rule of "Ignorantia legis non excusat" also does not apply where the mistake is of a matter of law arising upon some point of doubtful construction, for the ignorance before a decision of what was the true construction cannot deprive a person of his right to relief. It is very different to a well-known rule of law (see Earl of Beauchamp v. Winn, supra.)

But the other class, viz., mistakes in matters of fact, may be divided as of two kinds; (1) Where the mistake consists in having done something under an erroneous impression; and (2) Where it consists in having done something never intended to be done. In the latter kind of cases relief will almost universally be given, but in the former it is far more difficult to obtain relief, and more usually it will not be granted, though in some cases it will, for instance, when the mistake consists in supposing the existence of something which in point of fact does not exist. The mistake must generally be unilateral only unless founded on mutual surprise. Acquiescence in a mistake will deprive a person of any right to be relieved against it. In Earl of Beauchamp v. Winn the alleged mistake had existed for more than sixty years, and it was argued in that case that the appellant was barred by his acquiescence, which might be implied from length of time, but it was decided that the ignorance of the appellant prevented any acquiescence on his part.

THE LAW AND PRACTICE IN BANKRUPTCY;

Comprising the Bankruptcy Act, 1869; the Debtors Act, 1869; the Insolvent Debtors and Bankruptcy Repeal Act, 1869; together with the General Rules and Orders in Bankruptcy, at Common Law and in the County Courts, the Practice on Procedure, copious Notes, References, and a very full Index. Second Edition. By HENRY PHILIP ROCHE and WILLIAM HAZLITT, Barristers-at-Law, and Registrars of the Court of Bankruptcy.

From the LAW TIMES.

"This work is one which has naturally carried with it more weight than any other text-book, having been written by two registrars of the Court of Bankruptcy. In practice it has been found to realise the anticipations formed concerning it, in proof of which we have now in our hands a second edition. Perhaps the most valuable feature of the work is the fulness of the practical details which enable a tyro to transact his business with tolerable security. The first half of the work comprises the Bankruptcy Act and the Debtors Act, which have been carefully and ably noted with all the decisions; and the latter half is devoted mainly to practice and procedure. The Bills of Sale Act and one or two other enactments are incorporated which are frequently consulted by the bankruptcy practitioner. A very elaborate index ends the volume."

From the LAW JOURNAL.

"The first two hundred pages of the work contain the Bankruptcy Act of 1869, printed in large type; and, where it is necessary, the learned authors have inserted after each section, in smaller type, very copious notes of the law, and all the cases referring to each particular subject. For instance, after section 15, which defines the property of a bankrupt divisible among his creditors, we find more than eight pages of notes and cases showing the present state of the law with reference to order and disposition, bills of sale, &c. Again, after section 72, which confers upon the Court of Bankruptcy full power to deal with and decide (without the intervention of the Courts of Common Law and Chancery) any question which may arise in the course of a bankruptcy, all the cases on the subject are very fully referred to, and the different opinions of the late Lord Chancellor and the Lords Justices in relation to the extension or curtailment of this novel jurisdiction are set out with a precision and minuteness which render any reference to the reports themselves almost unnecessary. In the addenda of cases the recent case of Ex parte Gordon, in re Dixon, is mentioned, which decides that when proceedings are instituted in Bankruptcy, and at the same time there is a pending Chancery suit, and the parties to the Bankruptcy and Chancery proceedings are substantially the same, and their rights and liabilities can be equally well ascertained under the bankruptcy as in the Chancery suit, the Court of Bankruptcy has jurisdiction under section 72 to stay proceedings in the Chancery suit so far as may be necessary. . . . The work before us also contains the Debtors Act of 1869, the Bankruptcy Repeal Act of 1869, the Absconding Debtors Act, 1869, with several other Acts and all the General Rules in Bankruptcy, printed and annotated in the same manner as the principal Act. There is also a very full collection of forms and bills of costs; but the portion of the work which is decidedly the most novel, and we imagine will prove extremely useful, is that comprised in pages 355-474, which contain an exposition by the authors on the practice on procedure to adjudication, liquidation, and composition with creditors, and on procedure under a debtors' summons. It is often that a practising lawyer is able to turn to a book on Practice written by the judges of the particular Court to which it relates, and, as it were, stamped with the seal of authority. . . . In conclusion, we have only to say that Messrs. Roche and Hazlitt have appended to their work a very full and copious index, and that we can cordially and conscientiously recommend it to the notice of the legal profession."

From the SOLICITORS' JOURNAL.

"The first edition of this work, issued shortly after the passing of the Acts of 1869, to meet a pressing demand, consisted of little more than a reprint of the Acts, Rules, and Forms, with a few notes and an index. In the present edition, however, the book has been expanded into a treatise on the law and practice in bankruptcy and now constitutes a bulky volume of 840 pages. The plan of the authors is to print the sections of the Acts in the order in which they stand in the Statute-book, appending to them notes more or less lengthy. These are followed by chapters on the practice on procedure to adjudication, procedure to liquidation, procedure to composition with creditors, procedure under debtors' summons, costs, and at the close of the work the General Rules, Orders, and Forms are given in full. The design of the authors is stated in the preface to have been 'more especially to render the volume of practical utility to the profession,' by which we understand them to mean that the practitioner should, with the least possible trouble, be able to lay his hand upon the law relating to the particular point as to which he desires information. For this purpose there is doubtless something to be said in favour of the retention of the arrangement of sections adopted in the Bankruptcy Act, 1869—singular and illogical as that arrangement is. Experience has made it tolerably familiar; the practitioner knows his way in the Act, and on many points can recall the number of the section relating to the point under discussion. In the book before us, such a reader is enabled by means of large consecutive figures at the head of each margin to reach the section and cases he requires without the trouble of referring to the index. In the hurry of daily practice this will probably be found no small advantage. In the subsequent chapters on adjudication, liquidation, composition, and debtors' summons, the arrangement adopted is the convenient one for practical purposes of tracing each consecutive step of the procedure, and welding together the provisions of the Acts, Rules, and Forms, with the substance of the cases. This appears to us to be successfully accomplished, and the book, as a whole, constitutes a useful digest of the statutory and case law. As regards the former, the work appears to contain every provision relating to or connected with the subject, including even the orders made in December, 1869, transferring business then pending. The cases are taken from a wide range of reports and include a considerable number cited from MSS. notes. Even Lord Westbury's characteristic remarks in Michael Brown's case (17 S. J. 310) as to the effect in certain cases of section 23 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, find a place in the volume. The index is unusually full, combining both an analysis and index; and, lastly, the type and paper are all that can be desired."

THE LAW OF EXTRADITION.

Just published, Second Edition, in 8vo., price 18s., cloth,

A TREATISE UPON
THE LAW OF EXTRADITION.

WITH THE

CONVENTIONS UPON THE SUBJECT EXISTING BETWEEN ENGLAND AND FOREIGN NATIONS,

AND

THE CASES DECIDED THEREON.

By EDWARD CLARKE,

OF LINCOLN'S INN, BARRISTER-AT-LAW, AND LATE TANCRED STUDENT.

"The opinion we expressed of the merits of this work when it first appeared has been fully justified by the reputation it has gained. This new edition, embodying and explaining the recent legislation on extradition, is likely to sustain that reputation. . . . There are other points we had marked for comment, but we must content ourselves with heartily commending this new edition to the attention of the profession. It is seldom we come across a book possessing so much interest to the general reader and at the same time furnishing so useful a guide to the lawyer."—The Solicitors' Journal.

"The appearance of a second edition of this treatise does not surprise us. It is a useful book, well arranged and well written. A student who wants to learn the principles and practice of the law of extradition will be greatly helped by Mr. Clarke. Lawyers who have extradition business will find this volume an excellent book of reference. Magistrates who have to administer the extradition law will be greatly assisted by a careful perusal of 'Clarke upon Extradition.' This may be called a warm commendation, but those who have read the book will not say it is unmerited. We have so often to expose the false pretenders to legal authorship that it is a pleasure to meet with a volume that is the useful and unpretending result of honest work. Besides the Appendix, which contains the extradition conventions of this country since 1843, we have eight chapters. The first is 'Upon the Duty of Extradition;' the second on the 'Early Treaties and Cases;' the others on the law in the United States, Canada, England, and France, and the practice in those countries."—The Law Journal.

"One of the most interesting and valuable contributions to legal literature which it has been our province to notice for a long time, is 'Clarke's Treatise on the Law of Extradition.' . . . Mr. Clarke's work comprises chapters upon the Duty of Extradition; Early Treaties and Cases; History of the Law in the United States, in Canada, in England, in France, &c., with an Appendix containing the Conventions existing between England and Foreign Nations, and the Cases decided thereon. . . . The work is ably prepared throughout, and should form a part of the library of every lawyer interested in great Constitutional or International Questions."—Albany Law Journal.

THE TIMES of September 7, 1874, in a long article upon "Extradition Treaties," makes considerable use of this work, and writes of it as "Mr. Clarke's useful Work on Extradition."

Books for Students.

Third Edition, in 8vo., price 20s., cloth,

THE PRINCIPLES OF EQUITY.

INTENDED FOR THE USE OF STUDENTS AND THE PROFESSION.

By EDMUND H. T. SNELL, of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

Third Edition by JOHN R. GRIFFITH, of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law.

In one vol., 8vo., 1874.

 This Work has become a Standard Class-book in England, Ireland, India, and the Colonies.*

REVIEWS OF SECOND EDITION.

"The lectures of Mr. Birkbeck probably bear the ordeal of reproduction better than any other lectures on law of which we have any knowledge. He is a more scientific lawyer than Mr. Smith, whose manual has been so largely used by law students, and naturally, therefore, 'Snell's Equity' must be more useful than Smith's Manual. With respect to this edition, we have only to observe that Mr. Griffith has edited his author's work with great care, and has noted all the cases, whilst preserving the convenient form in which it originally appeared."—Law Times.

"The book has the merit of being written in clear and intelligible language. It is admirably printed, and otherwise carries with it an attractive appearance."—Law Journal.

"Mr. Snell's volume, which we noticed favourably some four years ago on its first appearance, is a manual very well adapted for the use of students, being written and arranged with discrimination and intelligence. We have pleasure in stating our opinion that the work will continue to maintain the position it had already gained."—Solicitors' Journal.

"It (Snell's book) is less bulky than Story's Commentaries, while it is easier to comprehend; and, from the number of illustrative cases, easier to remember than Adams' Treatise on Equity. And on one point it is superior to both, and, indeed, deserves high commendation. Every one who has read the recent reports of Equity Cases in England, is aware how many important decisions have been made within the last four years on many points of Chancery law. To these decisions, which are wholly wanting in Adams, and very imperfectly given in the recent editions of Story's Commentaries, Mr. Snell has made very full reference; and it is this part of his book which, besides its aid to the student, gives it a real value to the practitioner."—American Law Review.

By ARCHIBALD BROWN, M.A. Edin. and Oxon. and B.C.L. Oxon., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

"Mr. Archibald Brown deserves the thanks of all interested in the science of law, whether as a study or a practice, for his edition of Herr von Savigny's great work on 'Obligations.' Mr. Brown has undertaken a double task—the translation of his author, and the analysis of his author's matter. That he has succeeded in reducing the bulk of the original will be seen at a glance; the French translation consisting of two volumes, with some five hundred pages apiece, is compared with Mr. Brown's thin volume of a hundred and fifty pages. At the same time the pith of Von Savigny's matter seems to be very successfully preserved, nothing which might be useful to the English reader being apparently omitted.

"The new edition of Savigny will, we hope, be extensively read and referred to by English lawyers. If it is not, it will not be the fault of the translator and epitomiser. Far less will it be the fault of Savigny himself, whose clear definitions and accurate analyses are of great use to the legal practitioner."

AN EPITOME OF LEADING COMMON LAW CASES; WITH SOME SHORT NOTES THEREON.

Chiefly intended as a Guide to "SMITH'S LEADING CASES." By JOHN INDERMAUR, Solicitor (Clifford's Inn Prizeman, Michaelmas Term, 1872).

"This should be placed in the handy-volume series of law books. Its title expresses its object—that of an Epitome and Guide to Leading Cases. The Cases themselves are stated with admirable brevity and clearness, and the notes turn out to be more full and instructive than their material size would seem to indicate. The type and binding are excellent, and in several respects this is an improvement on the first edition."—American Law Review.

"Mr. John Indermaur published last year an epitome of leading common law cases intended as a guide to, or rather we should say as the essence of Smith's 'Leading Cases.' At the end of thirteen months from the publication of the little volume the demand has justified a second edition. Last year we suggested that the compiler of the book knew the value of skilful 'cram' in the law examinations; and the call for a second edition plainly shows that our suspicion was correct. One case has been added, and also references to the original reports of the several cases; otherwise, the book is a mere reprint, and a glance at it with a knowledge of its popularity affords an exact view of the art of examination as used in the 'Final.'—The Law Journal.

OF LINCOLN'S INN, BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

REVIEWS.

"A work which aims at being so absolutely complete, as that of Mr. Joyce upon a subject which is of almost perpetual recurrence in the Courts, cannot fail to be a welcome offering to the profession; and, doubtless, it will be well received and largely used, for it is as absolutely complete as it aims at being. . . . This work is, therefore, eminently a work for the practitioner, being full of practical utility in every page, and every sentence, of it. . . . We have to congratulate the profession on this new acquisition to a digest of the law, and the author on his production of a work of permanent utility and—fame."—Law Magazine and Review.

"Mr. Joyce has produced not a treatise but a complete and compendious exposition of the Law and Practice of Injunctions both in equity and common law.

"Part III. is devoted to the practice of the Courts. Contains an amount of valuable and technical matter nowhere else collected.

"Mr. Joyce's work, within the limits which he has assigned himself, is well done. He has been evidently diligent in the collection of cases, and the points decided are stated with accuracy, and with more fulness of detail than in any work on injunctions with which we are familiar. It cannot fail to be useful in instructing practitioners in the proper employment of this much abused method of procedure."—American Law Review.

"Mr. Joyce has produced a clear, scientific, and thorough treatise upon the subject of injunctions which, unlike most English works, will be nearly as useful to the American as to the English practitioner.

"We doubt if there can be a single case of any note found upon injunctions in the English law that is not cited in these volumes."—Chicago Legal News.

"This work, considered either as to its matter or manner of execution, is no ordinary work. It is a complete and exhaustive treatise both as to the law and the practice of granting injunctions. It must supersede all other works on the subject. The terse statement of the practice will be found of incalculable value. We know of no book as suitable to supply a knowledge of the law of injunctions to our common law friends as Mr. Joyce's exhaustive work. It is alike indispensable to members of the Common Law and Equity Bars. Mr. Joyce's great work would be a casket without a key unless accompanied by a good index. His index is very full and well arranged. We feel that this work is destined to take its place as a standard text-book, and the text-book on the particular subject of which it treats. The author deserves great credit for the very great labour bestowed upon it. The publishers, as usual, have acquitted themselves in a manner deserving of the highest reprobation."—Canada Law Journal.

"From these remarks it will be sufficiently perceived what elaborate and painstaking industry, as well as legal knowledge and ability, has been necessary in the compilation of Mr. Joyce's work. No labour has been spared to save the practitioner labour, and no research has been omitted which could tend towards the elucidation and exemplification of the general principles of the Law and Practice of Injunctions."—Law Journal.

"He does not attempt to go an inch beyond that for which he has express written authority; he allows the cases to speak, and does not speak for them.

"The work is something more than a treatise on the Law of Injunctions. It gives us the general law on almost every subject to which the process of injunction is applicable. Not only English, but American decisions are cited, the aggregate number being 3,500, and the statutes cited 160, whilst the index is, we think, the most elaborate we have ever seen—occupying nearly 200 pages. The work is probably entirely exhaustive."—Law Times.

CASES AND OPINIONS ON CONSTITUTIONAL LAW,

AND VARIOUS POINTS OF ENGLISH JURISPRUDENCE.

Collected and Digested from Official Documents and other Sources ;

WITH NOTES.

By WILLIAM FORSYTH, M.A., Q.C.,

Standing Counsel to the Secretary of State in Council of India,

Author of "Hortensius," "History of Trial by Jury," "Life of Cicero," etc., late Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge.

From the CONTEMPORARY REVIEW.

"We cannot but regard with interest a book which, within moderate compass, presents us with the opinions or responsa of such lawyers and statesmen as Somers, Holt, Hardwicke, Mansfield, and, to come down to our own day, Lyndhurst, Abinger, Denman, Cranworth, Campbell, St. Leonards, Westbury, Chelmsford, Cockburn, Cairns, and the present Lord Chancellor Hatherley. At the end of each chapter of the 'Cases and Opinions,' Mr. Forsyth has added notes of his own, containing a most excellent summary of all the law bearing on that branch of his subject to which the 'Opinions' refer. . . . Our space precludes us from dwelling upon the contents of this work at any greater length, but we think we have said enough to show that it is worthy of a place on the book-shelves of our statesmen, and all who take an interest in constitutional, or rather, national and colonial questions."

From the LAW MAGAZINE and LAW REVIEW.

"Mr. Forsyth has largely and beneficially added to our legal stores. His work may be regarded as in some sense a continuation of 'Chalmers's Opinions of Eminent Lawyers.' . . . The constitutional relations between England and her colonies are becoming every day of more importance. The work of Mr. Forsyth will do more to make these relations perfectly clear than any which has yet appeared. Henceforth it will be the standard work of reference in a variety of questions which are constantly presenting themselves for solution both here and in our colonies. . . . Questions of colonial law by no means occupy an exclusive share of the volume. . . . Among other questions on which 'opinions' are given, and of which careful summaries and generalisations have been added by Mr. Forsyth, are those relating to vice-admiralty jurisdiction and piracy; the prerogatives of the Crown in relation to treasure trove, land in the colonies, mines, cession of territory, &c.; the power of courts-martial, extra-territorial jurisdiction, allegiance, the lex loci and the lex fori, extradition, and appeals from the colonies. The volume bears marks of extreme care and regard to accuracy, and is in every respect a valuable contribution to constitutional law."

From the CANADA LAW JOURNAL.

"Mr. Forsyth at the present juncture has done good service not only to his profession, but to all men who take any interest in public affairs, and we therefore hope that those for whom the book is especially intended will not be backward in giving to it that support which the industry and ability of its author, and the public spirit and enterprise of its publishers, so well deserve."

From the LAW TIMES.

"This one volume of 560 pages or thereabouts is a perfect storehouse of law not readily to be found elsewhere, and the more useful because it is not abstract law, but the application of principles to particular cases. Mr. Forsyth's plan is that of classification. He collects in separate chapters a variety of opinions bearing upon separate branches of the law. Thus, the first chapter is devoted to cases on the common law, and the law applicable to the colonies; the second to the ecclesiastical law relating to the colonies; the third to the powers and duties, civil and criminal liabilities, of governors of colonies; the next to vice-admiralty jurisdiction and piracy; the fifth to certain prerogatives of the Crown: such as lands in the colonies, grants, escheats, mines, treasure trove, royal fish, felon's goods, writ ne exeat regno, proclamation, cession of territory, and creation of courts of justice; the sixth chapter contains opinions on martial law and courts-martial; the seventh on extra-territorial jurisdiction; the eighth on the lex loci and lex fori; the ninth on allegiance and aliens; and then successively on extradition; on appeals from the colonies; on the revocation of charters; on the Channel Islands; on the nationality of a ship, and other matters relating to ships; on the power of the Crown to grant exclusive rights of trade; on writs of habeas corpus; on certain points relating to the criminal law; and lastly, on miscellaneous subjects, such as the declaration of war before hostilities; on the right of war, booty and prize, and on the grant of a marriage licence. . . . This is a book to be read, and therefore we recommend it not to all lawyers only, but to every law student. The editor's own notes are not the least valuable portion

THE LAW OF RAILWAY COMPANIES.

Comprising the Companies Clauses, the Lands Clauses, the Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts, the Railway Companies Act, 1867, and the Regulation of Railways Act, 1868; with Notes of Cases on all the Sections, brought down to the end of the year 1868; together with an Appendix giving all the other material Acts relating to Railways, and the Standing Orders of the Houses of Lords and Commons; and a copious Index. By HENRY GODEFROI, of Lincoln's Inn, and JOHN SHORTT, of the Middle Temple, Barristers-at-Law.

"The title of this book is the best possible explanation of its contents. Here we have all the statutes affecting Railway Companies, with the standing orders of Parliament, in a volume exquisitely printed, and of most convenient size and form. We have also, what in effect to the practitioner is a complete manual of reference of all the decided cases on Railway Law, together with an index of so copious and accurate a nature, as to render the discovery of every section and every authority easy in the highest degree. . . . We find pages of authorities on 'transfer of shares,' 'calls,' 'forfeiture of shares,' 'sci. fa.,' 'Lloyd's bonds,' 'contracts by companies,' and 'dividends.' Then comes a mass of matter relating to the voluntary and compulsory acquisition of lands by Railway Companies, while the 'compensation' cases stretch over some fifty pages. So also under the third statute, there are a dozen pages on the powers and duties of Railway Companies in the construction of their works, while the liability of the Companies as carriers of passengers and goods is also elucidated in the most elaborate style. The 'Rating of Railways' adds several pages of authorities. . . . We believe that we have said enough to show that this book will prove to be of pre-eminent value to practitioners, both before Parliamentary committees and in the Courts of Law and Equity."—Law Journal.

THE LAW OF COMPENSATION FOR LANDS, HOUSES, &c.

Under the Lands Clauses, Railways Clauses Consolidation and Metropolitan Acts, &c., with a full Collection of Forms and Precedents. Second Edition (much enlarged). By EYRE LOYD, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

"Few branches of the law lying within so small a compass affect so many and such important interests as that which gives compensation for lands compulsorily taken for the purpose of public improvement, or private enterprise for a public benefit, and for injuries done to other private properties by the construction of the necessary works. The cases decided upon the questions that arise for solution in the application of this law are very numerous, and many of them very difficult; and a collection of them well arranged, with the principles they determine clearly stated appended to the statute, could not fail to be cordially welcomed by all concerned in properties they affected, whether lawyers or land valuers. It is not therefore surprising that Mr. Lloyd's admirable treatise, exhaustive as it is, should have passed so rapidly into a second edition. But short as is the time since it made its first appearance, it has sufficed to produce quite a crop of new decisions, all of which have been carefully noted up. The volume contains also a valuable collection of practical precedents."—Law Times.

THE LAW OF SALVAGE,

As administered in the High Court of Admiralty and the County Courts; with the Principal Authorities, English and American, brought down to the present time; and an Appendix, containing Statutes, Forms, Table of Fees, etc. By EDWYN JONES, of Gray's Inn, Barrister-at-Law.

"This book will be of infinite service to lawyers practising in the maritime law courts and to those engaged in shipping. In short, Mr. Jones's book is a complete guide, and is full of information upon all phases of the subject, tersely and clearly written. It will be quite as useful to, as it is as much needed by, the American lawyer as the English, because the salvage laws of America and England are much alike, and Mr. Jones makes constant reference to American authorities. The book is all the more welcome because the subject upon which it treats is but little understood except by a favoured few. Now, however, if interested people remain ignorant it is their own fault. Mr. Jones has treated a very complicated and difficult subject in a simple and concise manner, and his success is commensurate with his simplicity of style."—Liverpool Journal of Commerce.

"An admirable treatise on an important branch of jurisprudence is compiled by Mr. Edwyn Jones, of Gray's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, who, in a compact volume, gives us a very comprehensive statement of 'The Law of Salvage,' as administered in the High Court of Admiralty and the County Courts; with the principal authorities, English and American, brought down to the present time, and an Appendix containing statutes, forms, tables of fees, &c. Mr. Jones has consulted a wide range of cases, and systematised with much skill and clearness the leading principles deducible from numerous judgments and precedents, both here and in the United States. His work is likely to become a text-book of law in question."—Daily News.

THE RULE OF THE LAW OF FIXTURES.

Second Edition, embracing references to English, Scotch, Irish, and American Decisions.

By ARCHIBALD BROWN, M.A. Edin. and Oxon. and B.C.L. Oxon., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

"It is a good and very sensible and readable book to the practical and common sense English and American lawyer. It takes up a difficult subject, begins at the very beginning, tracing the decisions in the order of time, and showing how they gradually extended a principle here, then another there, until finally a system is built up, somewhat incoherent, but good enough for all practical purposes, and enabling the lawyer, to use our author's words, 'to advise upon Modern Cases.' We have read it with much zest, and greatly admire it. . . . We can recommend it as being an exhaustive compilation."—The Southern Law Review.

"Great industry has been spent in reconciling the numerous decisions on a very difficult branch of law, and even in illustrating it by references to American cases. . . . In one respect Mr. Brown seems admirably adapted to the task of writing on the law of fixtures. He is strongly convinced of the influence of history upon law. In his opening sentence he tells us that 'it has been said of history that it finds its entablature in law; it may conversely be said of law that it finds its explanation in history.' The sentence is a good opening upon a subject which owes so much of its law to arbitrary rules rather than general principles as fixtures: Mr. Brown proceeds to trace the effect of history on his subject in a passage which is very à propos:—

 Mr. Brown's seventh and last chapter will be found to contain a most serviceable enumeration of the recent cases, arranged according as the conflict was between landlord and tenant, mortgagor and mortgagee, and so on."—Law Journal.

A TREATISE ON THE STATUTES OF ELIZABETH AGAINST FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES,

The Bills of Sale Registration Acts, and the Law of Voluntary Dispositions of Property generally.

By H. W. MAY, B.A. (Ch. Ch. Oxford), and of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law.

"This treatise has not been published before it was wanted. The statutes of Elizabeth against fraudulent conveyances have now been in force for more than three hundred years. The decisions under them are legion in number, and not at all times consistent with each other. An attempt to reduce the mass of decisions into something like shape, and the exposition of legal principles involved in the decisions, under any circumstances, must have been a work of great labour, and we are pleased to observe that in the book before us there has been a combination of unusual labour with considerable professional skill. . . . We cannot conclude our notice of this work without saying that it reflects great credit on the publishers as well as the author. The facilities afforded by Messrs. Stevens and Haynes for the publication of treatises by rising men in our profession are deserving of all praise. We feel assured that they do not lightly lend their aid to works presented for publication, and that in consequence publication by such a firm is to some extent a guarantee of the value of the work published."—Canada Law Journal.

"Examining Mr. May's book, we find it constructed with an intelligence and precision which render it entirely worthy of being accepted as a guide in this confessedly difficult subject. The subject is an involved one, but with clean and clear handling it is here presented as clearly as it could be. . . . On the whole, he has produced a very useful book of an exceptionally scientific character."—Solicitors' Journal.

"The subject and the work are both very good. The former is well chosen, new, and interesting; the latter has the quality which always distinguishes original research from borrowed labours."—American Law Review.

"We are happy to welcome his (Mr. May's) work as an addition to the, we regret to say, brief catalogue of law books conscientiously executed. We can corroborate his own description of his labours, 'that no pains have been spared to make the book as concise and practical as possible, without doing so at the expense of perspicuity, or by the omission of any important points.'"—Law Times.

A TREATISE ON THE LAW OF DAMAGES.

COMPRISING THEIR MEASURE,

THE MODE IN WHICH THEY ARE ASSESSED AND REVIEWED,

The Practice of Granting New Trials, and the Law of Set-off.

By JOHN D. MAYNE,

Of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

SECOND EDITION,

By LUMLEY SMITH, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

"Few modern text-books have a higher authority than Mayne on Damages. An argument is seldom heard in the courts upon a question of the measure of damages without the work being referred to; and there are several points upon which there was, at the date of the first edition (1856), either an absence or a conflict of authority, and upon which the views advanced by the author have since been held to be law by the courts. . . . It is fortunate for the reputation of the work that so good an editor has been found for it as Mr. Lumley Smith. The additions to the text of the former edition are distinguished by brackets. Mr. Lumley Smith's work has been well done, and the new cases are skilfully incorporated. . . . Probably there is no other one subject upon which the cases reported as well as unreported so frequently present the same difficulty of extracting from complicated statements of fact, special in their character and not likely to occur again, the legal principles involved in the decision, so as to be available for guidance in other cases. It is exactly this difficulty which makes the subject one upon which a good text-book such as the present is peculiarly valuable."—Solicitors' Journal.

"We are glad that this useful work fell into the hands of so capable an editor as Mr. Lumley Smith. It is always a great advantage gained when an editor has had practical experience of the subject with which he deals, and it is a positive gain to the law when busy lawyers can find time to do well the work which is so apt to fall into the hands of those who have little learning and less practice. The law relating to damages is a branch of our jurisprudence peculiarly practical in its nature and highly important to suitors and the profession; it is, moreover, surrounded by difficulties which require a clear explanation before they become intelligible to the ordinary mind. . . .

"The concluding chapter (c. 19) is very important, and we should like to make copious extracts from it. It deals with the 'powers of the court or judge in regard to damages.' We recommend it to the attention of our readers, as indeed we do the entire work, which is excellently executed, with an entire freedom from verbosity, and a good index."—Law Times.

"In the year 1856 Mr. John D. Mayne, a gentleman of the bar, now enjoying a very extensive practice in the Indian Empire, published a treatise on the Law of Damages. Mr. Mayne conferred a great boon on the profession by his labours, and for sixteen years his book has been regarded with high respect in Westminster Hall. In the ordinary course of things such a lapse of time, from the natural accretion of precedents, would have created a demand for a new edition, but in the particular department of law investigated by Mr. Mayne there has been an extraordinary development of principles, exhibited in numerous cases, upon which the judges have expended a large amount of time, industry, and learning. Consequently, the publication of a new edition is not premature. On the contrary, it was high time that the profession should be supplied with a treatise condensing and arranging the matter brought into existence by the contested cases of that period. It is perfectly intelligible that Mr. Mayne's absence from England and the toil of his professional career have prevented him from undertaking this duty himself. But the performance of it has fallen on a deputy, whose success in the discharge thereof might fairly have been anticipated, and who in the result has, we think, not disappointed the reasonable expectations formed concerning him.

"Mr. Lumley Smith has evidently been actuated by a modest desire not to despoil the original author of well-earned fame. He has, as far as possible, retained the primary form of the book, and has distinguished what Mr. Mayne wrote from what he himself has written, by enclosing all the later matter in brackets, adding a brief separate chapter on the assessment of damages in the Court of Chancery under Lord Cairns's Act, 21 & 22 Vict. c. 27. He has also cited many Scotch and Irish cases, and the leading American decisions of recent date.

"One word with regard to the book itself will not be out of place. It is well printed, in an excellent form, and of a convenient size—no small considerations in a text-book, which, from the nature of its contents, is useful rather for reference than for study. Good looks in a book set off its intrinsic merits, just as an imposing appearance adds to the dignity and influence of a judge."—Law Journal.

AN APPENDIX OF STATUTES AND AN INDEX.

By HENRY JEFFREYS BUSHBY, Esq.,

One of the Metropolitan Police Magistrates, sometime Recorder of Colchester.

FOURTH EDITION,

Adapted to and embodying the recent changes in the Law, including the Ballot Act, the Instructions to Returning Officers in England and Scotland issued by the Home Office, and the whole of the Statute Law relating to the subject.

Edited by HENRY HARDCASTLE,

OF THE INNER TEMPLE, BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

"We have just received at a very opportune moment the new edition of this useful work. We need only say that those who have to do with elections will find 'Bushby's Manual' replete with information and trustworthy, and that Mr. Hardcastle has incorporated all the recent changes of the law."—Law Journal.

"As far as we can judge, Mr. Hardcastle, who is known as one of the joint editors of O'Malley and Hardcastle's Election Reports, has done his work well. . . . For practical purposes, as a handy manual, we can recommend the work to returning officers, agents, and candidates; and returning officers cannot do better than distribute this manual freely amongst their subordinates, if they wish them to understand their work."—Solicitors' Journal.

THE LAW AND PRACTICE OF ELECTION PETITIONS,

With an Appendix containing the Parliamentary Elections Act, 1868, the General Rules for the Trial of Election Petitions in England, Scotland, and Ireland, Forms of Petitions, &c. By HENRY HARDCASTLE, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

"Mr. Hardcastle gives us an original treatise with foot notes, and he has evidently taken very considerable pains to make his work a reliable guide. Beginning with the effect of the Election Petitions Act, 1868, he takes his readers step by step through the new procedure. His mode of treating the subject of 'particulars' will be found extremely useful, and he gives all the law and practice in a very small compass. In an Appendix is supplied the Act and the Rules. We can thoroughly recommend Mr. Hardcastle's book as a concise manual on the law and practice of election petitions."—Law Times.

SOME RARE LAW BOOKS.

[From "THE ALBANY LAW JOURNAL."]

"Law books are not generally things of beauty. There is nothing particularly gratifying to the esthetic department of the human organism in the conventional typography and sheep-skin. Some of our publishers give considerable attention to the mechanical execution of their books, and deserve and receive a good degree of credit therefor. But, after all, their labours seldom please the eye. In most marked contrast to even the very best of our books, are a series of law books that have been recently issued by Messrs. STEVENS & HAYNES, of London. They are reprints of some of the scarcest of the Old English Reports, and in their mechanical execution would delight the heart of Aldus Manutius, Thuanus, or any other admirer of elegant editions. The black letter type of the originals is faithfully reproduced, the curious old-style spelling and interchange of letters have been closely followed, while the rich antique calf covers are, no doubt, superior to anything that served to encase the original Reports. These editions have been carefully prepared, and some of the volumes have been enriched with notes added in MS. to some copy of the original by its learned owner generations ago.

"This enterprise of Messrs. STEVENS & HAYNES is a matter of universal interest, and appeals to every lover of elegant books. The works which they have reproduced are those which were the scarcest, and for copies of which the most exorbitant prices were demanded. The following is a brief description of the matter of these volumes."

LES ANS DU ROY RICHARD LE SECOND.

Collect' ensembl' hors les abridgments de Statham, Fitzherbert, et Brooke. Per RICHARD BELLEWE, de Lincolns Inne. 1585. Reprinted from the Original Edition.

"No public library in the world, where English law finds a place, should be without a copy of this edition of Bellewe."—Canada Law Journal.

"We have here a fac-simile edition of Bellewe, and it is really the most beautiful and admirable reprint that has appeared at any time. It is a perfect gem of antique printing, and forms a most interesting monument of our early legal history. It belongs to the same class of works as the Year Book of Edward I. and other similar works which have been printed in our own time under the auspices of the Master of the Rolls; but is far superior to any of them, and is in this respect highly creditable to the spirit and enterprise of private publishers. The work is an important link in our legal history; there are no year books of the reign of Richard II., and Bellewe supplied the only substitute by carefully extracting and collecting all the cases he could find, and he did it in the most convenient form—that of alphabetical arrangement in the order of subjects, so that the work is a digest as well as a book of law reports. It is in fact a collection of cases of the reign of Richard II., arranged according to their subjects in alphabetical order. It is, therefore, one of the most intelligible and interesting legal memorials of the Middle Ages."—Law Times.

"The instructive chapter which precedes the cases, entitled 'A proposal for rendering the Laws of England clear and certain,' gives the volume a degree of peculiar interest, independent of the value of many of the reported cases. That chapter begins with words which ought, for the information of every people, to be printed in letters of gold. They are as follows: 'Nothing conduces more to the peace and prosperity of every nation than good laws and the due execution of them.' The history of the civil law is then rapidly traced. Next a history is given of English Reporters, beginning with the reporters of the Year Books from 1 Edw. III. to 12 Hen. VIII.—being near 200 years—and afterwards to the time of the author."—Canada Law

By WALTER ARTHUR COPINGER, of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law, Author of "The Law of Copyright in Works of Literature and Art."

"We cannot close this review of Mr. Copinger's publication better than with the apt quotation with which he inaugurates it: 'Knowledge is of two kinds; we know a subject ourselves, or we know where we can find information upon it.'"—Law Journal.

"Mr. Copinger has not only designed an Index which cannot fail to be of practical use, but has successfully elaborated the work designed by combining a perspicuous order of arrangement with a most exhaustive table of contents, and most copious references to precedents. The Index is arranged in alphabetical order, with subdivisions of an analytical nature, the latter being made throughout subservient to the former.

THE LAW OF NEGLIGENCE,

Illustrated by the Recent Decisions of the Courts of the United Kingdom and America. By ROBERT CAMPBELL, Advocate of the Scotch Bar, and of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law.

In this Essay, the Author reviews old principles in the light of recent decisions; combining the point of view of the practitioner—noting the latest phase of judicial opinion; with the attempt to digest and harmonize the law, so that (if possible) new decisions may seem to illustrate old and familiar principles, or that the extent and direction of the change introduced by each decision may be correctly estimated.

"I would also refer to some ingenious remarks as to the misapplication of the term 'gross negligence,' which are to be found in a very good book—Campbell's Law of Negligence."—Mr. Justice Willes in the case of "Oppenheim v. White Lion Hotel Co."

"We presume from this being styled Digest by a series of practical Law Tracts, that Mr. Campbell is about to devote his attention to other subjects, which, from the success of his first attempt, we shall expect to see him elucidate considerably. If, however, he should ever find time to expand this tract on the Law of Negligence into a complete treatise, we shall expect to find it one of the most useful text-books on English law."—Solicitors' Journal.

THE AMERICAN REPORTS.

CONTAINING ALL CASES OF GENERAL VALUE,

DECIDED BY THE COURT OF LAST RESORT IN EVERY STATE IN THE UNION.

The Reports of the Courts of Last Resort of the several States contain cases of great general importance, and which are always considered as high authority by the Courts of the other States, but they are buried beneath a mass of practice and local cases of no value outside of the States in which they are decided.

In "The American Reports" the plan is to give all cases having a general value, hereafter decided by the Court of Last Resort in every State, unencumbered by Practice Cases and those of local importance only.

AMERICAN CONSTITUTIONS:

Comprising the Constitution of each State in the Union, and of the United States, with the Declaration of Independence and Articles of Confederation; each accompanied by a Historical Introduction and Notes, together with a Classified Analysis of the Constitutions, according to their subjects, showing, by comparative arrangement, every Constitutional Provision now in force in the several States; with References to Judicial Decisions, and an Analytical Index. Illustrated by carefully engraved fac-similes of the Great Seals of the United States, and of each State and Territory. By FRANKLIN B. HOUGH. In two vols., price 70*s*., bound. 1872.

THE AMERICAN LAW REVIEW.

A Quarterly Journal of American Jurisprudence, &c. Price 6*s*. each number.

The principal features of this Review are treatises upon practical or theoretical points of law, reports of leading cases, regular digests of the current series of English Reports and of the principal American cases from the courts of all the States, brief critical notices of new law-books, and in each number a "Summary of Events," where notes of decisions, legal intelligence, and professional gossip are grouped under local headings.

MANUAL OF THE LAWS AND COURTS OF THE UNITED STATES,

AND OF THE SEVERAL STATES AND TERRITORIES.

By HORACE ANDREWS, of the New York Bar.

This book is a complete summary in convenient form of the Jurisdiction of all the Courts, and of the Laws of the United States and all the other States and Territories, for the use of Lawyers, Notaries, Commissioners, Collecting Agents and business men.

From THE TIMES.

"Among recent publications has been a 'Manual of the Laws and Courts of the United States,' and of the several States and Territories, with a Dictionary of reliable practising lawyers, edited by Mr. Horace Andrews, A.M., of the New York Bar. The business relations of the two countries are extending with such rapidity as to render a work of the kind indispensable for use on this side, and the task seems to have been carefully performed by Mr. Andrews. It will not only serve to prevent contracts being entered into in ignorance of peculiar local statutes, but in many questions that may arise will save the delay and expense that would be caused by the necessity for correspondence; while to intending settlers also it will be a guide with regard to exemption and homestead laws, rates of interest, rights of married women, taxation, and other points bearing on their future course."

"The work, we are told in the Preface, is designed for lawyers and business men. The object appears to be to give a plain statement of the law, practice, and procedure of the courts, without the citation of authority, so as to be a guide to nonprofessional persons. It must prove a most useful epitome, for it contains a great amount of varied information."—Law Times.

FIRE INSURANCE CASES.

Being a Collection of all the Reported Cases on Fire Insurance in England, Ireland, Scotland, and America, from the earliest period to the present time, Chronologically arranged. With Notes and References. By EDMUND H. BENNETT. Vol. I., covering the period from 1729 to 1839; Vol. II., covering the period from 1840 to 1849. Two vols., royal 8vo. 1872-3. Price 3*l.* 15s., law calf.

It is proposed to issue a collection of all the cases on Fire Insurance from the earliest period to the present time, chronologically arranged, with notes and references, by Hon. EDMUND H. BENNETT, of the Boston Bar. The Series will embrace all the reported cases in England, Ireland, Scotland, and America, including Canada and the British Provinces. The opinions of the Court will always be given in full, but the arguments of Counsel and the reporter's statement will be sometimes condensed. New head-notes will also be frequently introduced, and foot-notes and references to other Cases added. The Court by which the Case was determined, and the volume and page where originally reported, will distinctly appear. A Table of Cases, both of those reported and of those only cited, with a full Index, will be found in each volume.

The volumes to complete the Work, and bringing the Cases to the present time, will be published at an early period.

BIGELOW'S INDEX OF OVERRULED CASES.

The attempt has been made in this Volume to collect all the reported cases from the earliest period to the present time which have been revised, overruled, denied, doubted, or modified, with such of the cases explained or distinguished as were deemed important; and, for the accomplishment of this purpose, all the Reports of the English, Irish, and American Courts have been examined, and for the most part page by page. The number of cases amounts to twenty thousand.

LIFE AND ACCIDENT INSURANCE REPORTS.

Vol. I.—Containing Reports of all the published Life and Accident Insurance Cases determined in the American Courts prior to January, 1871. With Notes to English Cases. Vol. II.—Containing all the Cases adjudicated on in the American and English Courts since the publication of Vol. I.; together with the prior leading English Life and Accident Insurance Cases. Vol. III., embraces the cases decided since January 1872, and also all the Scotch and Canadian cases of general interest, and such of the English and Irish cases as were not published in the second volume. The Scotch cases are as valuable as they are inaccessible to the Profession generally. By MELVILLE M. BIGELOW, of the Boston Bar. Three vols., royal 8vo. 1871-4. Price 5*l.* 10*s.*, law calf.

The subject of Life and Accident Insurance has within a few years sprung into such absorbing interest in the Courts, that it has been thought that a collection of the Cases upon this branch of the law would prove acceptable.

These Cases decide interesting and important questions concerning Suicide, Insurable Interest, Restrictions upon Residence and Travel, Receipt of Premium after Forfeiture, Death in Known Violation of Law, &c.

KENT'S COMMENTARIES ON AMERICAN LAW.

COMMENTARIES ON AMERICAN LAW.

By Hon. JAMES KENT. Edited and Revised by O. W. HOLMES, Junr. 12th Edition.
4 vols. royal 8vo. 1873. £5.

In the present edition of this work an attempt has been made to bring it down through the quarter of a century which has elapsed since the author's death.

The great weight attaching to any opinion of Chancellor Kent has been deemed a sufficient reason for not attempting any alteration in his text or notes. To insure accuracy, this edition has been printed from the eleventh, and then carefully read with the sixth, which contained the author's last corrections. The original text has been scrupulously restored, except that, whenever a difference between the proofs and the sixth edition has occurred in a citation, it has been corrected in the proper abbreviated form. In this way a large proportion of the author's citations have been verified; and it is believed that the present revision, together with the care which former editors have bestowed, has insured their accuracy.

A PRACTICAL TREATISE ON THE LAW OF COVENANTS FOR TITLE.

By WILLIAM HENRY RAWLE. Fourth Edition, revised and enlarged.

In the preparation of this edition every line has been carefully considered, and every authority consulted. Much of it has been written over,—in particular, the introduction, the chapter on “the usual covenants,” on the covenant against encumbrances, on covenants running with the land, and as to their operation by way of estoppel or rebutter. The subject of the measure of damages has been considered separately, and a new chapter has been added,—“The jurisdiction of equity as to covenants for title.” It is believed that the treatise now correctly represents the present state of the law in England and in America.

AMERICAN LAW WORKS.—*continued.WHARTON'S CRIMINAL LAW.

Seventh and Revised Edition. Three vols., royal 8vo. 1874.

Vol. I. PRINCIPLES, PLEADING, and EVIDENCE. Vol. II. CRIMES. Vol. III. PRACTICE.
Price £5, cloth.A TREATISE ON THE CRIMINAL LAW OF THE UNITED STATES. By FRANCIS WHARTON, LL.D., Author of "Conflict of Laws," "Precedents of Indictments and Pleas," "Medical Jurisprudence," "Law of Homicides," &c.

The third volume of this edition is substantially new, and comprehends an independent treatise on Criminal Practice. The chapters on Crimes, which in prior editions were spread over the second and third volumes, are now consolidated in the second. The whole work has been thoroughly revised and re-written, and upwards of six hundred pages of additional matter incorporated in the text. To enable this extension to be more readily mastered, the topics have been re-arranged, devoting the first volume to Principles, Pleading, and Evidence; the second to Crimes; and the third to Practice.

Recent investigations having shown that the chief maxims and definitions of the English Criminal Law have been largely derived from the Roman and Canon Law, has led to the introduction in this edition of a new feature—the references to the early jurists laying down and illustrating these maxims and definitions, as well as to such points in the dissertations of the more modern jurists as may be consulted with advantage. In making frequent references to these authorities there has been no relaxation of the vigilant scrutiny and careful analysis due to the adjudications of the Anglo-American Courts. So far from this being the case, there is not a citation in the former texts which has not for this edition been verified, and, as far as known, there is not a single intermediate reported English or American criminal decision that has not been scrutinized and introduced. Nor is this all. The student will see by comparison that the text has been so subdivided that each point is now presented in its own separate analytical place. That the labour thus applied is made only the more fruitful by the introduction of cognate foreign jurisprudences, will be conceded by all who will examine the sections devoted to Presumptions, to Casual Connection, to Estoppel by Consent, to Omissions, to Conflict of Jurisdictions, to Conspiracy, and to Attempts. The treatise now covers the whole field of Criminal Jurisprudence, and is commended with confidence to those engaged in the application of our criminal law, whether as practitioners or judges.

THE LAW OF CORPORATIONS.

Just Published, in 8vo., price 21s., cloth,

A TREATISE ON THE DOCTRINE

OF

ULTRA VIRES:

BEING

AN INVESTIGATION OF THE PRINCIPLES WHICH LIMIT
THE CAPACITIES, POWERS, AND LIABILITIES

OF

AND MORE ESPECIALLY OF

JOINT STOCK COMPANIES.

BY

SEWARD BRICE, M.A., LL.D., LONDON,

Of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

"The book is a useful compilation. The third chapter deals with business which a trading corporation may transact, and, although, as we have said, our author goes backwards from ultra vires to intra vires instead of tracing upwards the powers of corporations, he is clear in his treatment of the cases, and his chapter on 'dealing in shares' is very well written. And, again, the first chapter of Part III., on 'the user of special powers and privileges' is decidedly good, and must prove extremely useful. Indeed, Mr. Brice shows that he can write so well that we very much regret that he should have taken his subject the wrong way up. Had he confined his scheme to the rights and liabilities of corporations and companies and disregarded his so-called doctrines of ultra vires, we should have accorded to his labours unqualified approval."—Law Times.

"Mr. Brice, as might have been anticipated, has found the doctrine of ultra vires a very slender thread on which to hang his book; and he has wisely abandoned it in the arrangement of his chapters, which follow one another on the basis of the law of corporations, special prominence being given to the effect of the doctrine of ultra vires on those legal entities. When the reader has once got over the prejudice produced by Mr. Brice's strange enmity with his subject, he will find him a guide of very great value. Much information on a difficult and unattractive subject has been collected and arranged in a manner which will be of great assistance to the seeker after the law on a point involving the powers of a company."—Law Journal.

"The work is divided into four parts, with various chapters, covering everything in relation to corporations from their creation to their dissolution. The tables of cases and of the statutes adduced occupy twenty-five pages, in alphabetical order, and the index takes over forty more. It is an exceedingly valuable work at this time when the rights and powers of corporations are matters of so much interest in the United States, as well as in Great Britain, and its manifold cases furnish as interesting reading to the business man generally as to the lawyer or justice. Ultra Vires,—literally in law, beyond strength,—the practice of corporations going beyond their powers, their legal rights and limitations, their contracts and their agreements, their credit and their capital, is a subject which almost every man in the community has a direct or indirect interest in and is affected by."—*Boston (U.
